

allowance of tonnage closely approaching that of England or America, it is apparent that she contemplates building a considerable number of large aggregate tonnage.

In some quarters it is suggested that Japan may have in mind the development of aerial warfare at sea in the future and is bent upon obtaining an allowance of airplane carriers closely approximating that of the other naval powers.

French Can't See Need of It.

Under the Hughes plan Great Britain and the United States would have 30,000 tons of airplane carriers each and Japan 45,000.

Among the British and French naval experts, however, it was assumed that Japan is really aiming at a large allowance of light cruisers.

"Defensive warships—why does Japan need more defensive cruisers if there are to be no more offensive craft?" asked a member of the French delegation tonight, commenting on Baron Kato's proposal. "Asking for more offensive craft to protect one against possible offensive ships is like putting up mosquito netting in the winter in a country where there are no mosquitoes."

Britain Agitates Against Holiday.

The reputation by the British delegation of the proposal to permit the building of one ship a year instead of suspending construction entirely for ten years followed forty-eight hours of attack on the suggestion not only in this country but in England.

The one ship a year plan was broached by an authorized spokesman for the British delegation a few days ago and backed up with elaborate argument to the effect that if building were suspended entirely there would be no shipyard facilities at the end of the decade for the construction of replacements.

One of the members of the British delegation tonight sought to put the question on this version of the British attitude which had been bitterly assailed by the liberals in England as a death blow aimed at President Harding's proposed naval holiday.

Say Public Is Divided.

He asserted that no such proposal had been made by the British delegation and added:

"Building a capital ship a year would be a complete repudiation of the American proposals.

It is reported that there is a marked difference of opinion among the British delegates on this question. One faction favors a modification of the Hughes plan to permit the construction of one capital ship a year, while the other faction, which is said to include Mr. Balfour, has counseled against broaching any proposal that would make the naval holiday 'only a half holiday.'

The British official who repudiated the previously announced attitude, however, went on to say that there is an extremely serious problem to be solved in connection with the provisions for replacements. If armor plate plants and shipyards capable of turning out battleships are to be allowed to go out of existence for lack of business during the holiday, it will cost so much to revive facilities for replacements at the end of the ten years, and to train artisans, that much of the saving effected by the holiday would be sacrificed.

Ratio for France and Italy.

On high authority it is learned tonight that when the proper time arrives strong representations will be made by the British delegation on the desirability of considering the exact status of the navies of France and Italy in advance of any definite settlement of the future strength of the three principal naval powers, Great Britain, United States, and Japan. In Secretary Hughes' opening proposal for naval limitation France and Italy were passed over with the simple declaration that in view of the present strength of the French and Italian navies the United States did not consider it necessary to discuss at the present stage their tonnage allowance. It was made clear by Mr. Hughes, however, that this was a matter to be taken up later.

Under the Hughes proposal the scrapping of ships would reduce the tonnage of British capital ships to approximately 600,000 at once, with replacements after the proposed naval holiday on a basis of 500,000 tons. This would obviously narrow the ratio of comparative strength, naval men agree. If the building program of the

TO INSPECT NAVY YARDS

BY HENRY WALES.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 17.—(Special.)—Right of inspection of British and Japanese naval shipyards and factories producing naval armament and accessories is what the United States will demand in drafting the detailed agreement from the 5-3 plan.

America will throw open her navy yards, naval arsenals, and naval manufacturing plants, baring all her secrets to Japanese and British investigators if they will consent to extend the same facilities to United States naval officers.

Grave doubts are expressed as to whether the admiralty in London or the ministry of marine in Tokyo will consent to reveal their hidden mysteries at the request of an American officer whenever he appears.

Otherwise, Menace Is Created.

"Without mutual inspection, the 5-3 proposal either becomes scrapped itself or the United States is exposed to the most dangerous menace that has been yet," said an American naval officer in discussing the matter. "The United States has never masked her intentions nor camouflaged her policies. American newspapers have followed our naval and military plans and programs, exposing them to the world with accuracy and detail."

Naval control committees representing the two other contracting governments should be placed in each of the three capitals, it is proposed. Such a committee would add only a few officers and officials to the naval attaché's staff and would not incur any serious additional expenses.

LET AIRPLANES SUCCEED 'SUBS': ADMIRAL FISKE

Banish Undersea Craft, He Suggests.

(BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.)

Washington, D. C., Nov. 17.—(Special.)—Approval of the size limitation of submarines, or even the elimination of that craft, was expressed today by Rear Admiral Bradley A. Fiske, retired, one of the highest naval authorities in the United States, and by an influential member of the advisory committee to the American delegation.

In the view of Admiral Fiske, the principal function of the submarine is coast defense, and for even this purpose aircraft are more effective. Submarines have never been used to conspicuous advantage as an offensive weapon against enemy warships, and though they could be of service in operating with a battle fleet, their ability would not, in his judgment, justify a fight for their retention against the movement to rule out fleet submarines of wide cruising radius.

Attacks on Passenger Ships.

As a mine layer along enemy coasts or on the high seas the coast going submarine has high value, but no higher than aircraft, which can perform this operation with equal success. Against the admitted usefulness of the big submarine as a mine layer there is balanced the danger of its misuse against commercial and passenger vessels, he declared.

In the judgment of Admiral Fiske the United States could view with serenity the elimination of the submarine if other nations consent to give them up, but if it is retained at all no good purpose would be served by standing out for a larger submarine than is required for coast defense. In the case of the United States, submarines for this purpose should be able to patrol the coast from California to Washington and from Maine to Florida and the West Indies. Such submarines, however, need not exceed 500 or 600 tons.

Done Better with Airplanes.

As a matter of fact, the United States would be sacrificing very little in abandoning the submarine for, though invented by an American, this country has never been especially successful with undersea craft.

We have done far better in aviation than with submarines. With or without an adequate equipment of aircraft, could defend the Philippines from attack by Japan, in the judgment of this naval officer.

Without going into the tactics of the proposition, the member of the advisory committee who is also a member of the administration, said today that any limitation which might reduce the size or use of submarines, or even eliminate them entirely, would be in line with the purpose of the United States in calling the international conference.

"We want to limit armament," he said. "If a weapon can be common agreement be eliminated, so much the better. I see in that no menace to the security of the United States."

ADEQUATE ARMY OF DEFENSE MUST BE FUNDAMENTAL

Land Forces Important Problem.

BY GEN. HENRY J. REILLY.

(Editor Army and Navy Journal.)

Washington, D. C., Nov. 17.—(Special.)—Mr. Balfour in his speech accepting the principle of the limitation of armaments indicated the necessity of including the question of land armaments as well as sea armaments. Mr. Briand, the French premier, like the others, expressed his great sympathy with the principles which assembled this conference. Like the others, he brought out the fact that any agreement reached must be based upon national security.

Mr. Balfour showed that from a military point of view, the security of the British empire rests on control of the seas. Mr. Briand probably will bring out the fact that an army sufficiently large to meet at least on equal terms any force which can be brought against it is as essential to France as is control of the seas to Great Britain.

France Knows by Experience.

For many years prior to 1914, France knew the day would arrive when she would have to face the attack of a German army measurably superior in numbers. It was this ever-present danger which caused the republic of France to make an alliance with the autocracy of Russia. The two countries had nothing in common except fear of Germany. The same practical military point of view caused the French to forget centuries of warfare with England.

In spite of these precautions the Germans were still able to bring against France an army sufficient to turn its left flank and force it to the Marne. The British expeditionary force and the Belgian army were not adequate to make up for the disparity between the French and German armies.

The question as to what course Italy might follow necessitated keeping a considerable French force on the Franco-Italian border.

Despite the gallantry displayed by the British and French in the fall of 1914, a frank examination shows that the Germans would probably have won this fight had it not been for the Russian pressure on the other front.

Handicapped by Lack of Numbers.

From the close of this battle in the fall of 1914 and throughout all of 1915 advantage could not be taken of the fact that the Germans had been compelled to move the bulk of their forces to the Russian front. The French alone did not have sufficient numbers, while the British were unable to put a sufficient force into France to really take the offensive until the summer of 1918.

When the revolution in Russia freed the bulk of German troops from the eastern front and permitted their concentration in the west, the British, in March, and the French, in May, unsuccessfully faced attacks which they GENEVA, Nov. 17.—The love tragedy of the sisters who drew lots for death by poison became known recently in the Innsbruck courts when one of them was tried for murder. She was acquitted after she told her story.

The girls, daughters of a farmer named Goldhelm, fell in love with a former Hungarian officer, who was unable to distinguish the girls, and courted both, thinking he was always with the same sister. The officer, when he realized the situation, asked the girls to decide which should marry him.

They solved the problem by preparing a glass of water and a glass of poison. They drew lots, and the loser drank and died. When the surviving sister was arrested the officer disappeared.

JAPAN GRANTED DELAY TO STUDY CHINA'S APPEAL

Indications Point to Acceptance of Plan.

BULLETIN.
Washington, D. C., Nov. 17.—(By the Associated Press.)—Admiral Baron Kato, on behalf of the Japanese delegation, today asked and received from the heads of the delegations of the nine participating powers a delay of several days to allow examination of the far eastern proposals submitted yesterday by China.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.
Washington, D. C., Nov. 17.—(Special.)—While Baron Shidehara, the Japanese ambassador, developed a diplomatic illness today which necessitated postponement of a Japanese reply to the far eastern proposals, indications are that, with one or two amendments, the proposals will be agreed to in principle. It is certain that neither Great Britain nor Japan will attempt to bring forth a new formula.

The cables are busy to Tokyo and the home government is digesting China's demands. The general situation remains favorable and Japan probably will be able to accept most of the broad principles.

The American state department will maintain the traditional policy of this country toward Asia without descending to any trading or combinations.

France Offers Concessions.
France offers to surrender that part of old China which she holds in the south and to act in concert with the other powers on the surrender of extraterritoriality and concessions. These demands are practically the same that were presented at the Paris conference.

The subcommittee, consisting of the heads of the delegations, appointed to outline procedure for discussion of the far eastern proposals, met today in a committee room here. It was stated that they had "decided to recommend that at a meeting of the full committee of the delegates there should be first an opportunity for a general discussion of the questions relating to China, and then there should be a discussion of the various particular topics in the order listed in the tentative agenda which had been suggested by the American government."

Mean Secret Conference First.
Shorn of its diplomatic verbiage, this means that the entire conference will meet in secret and discuss the Chinese situation, then take up the American agenda and fit it with the Chinese proposals to make up a program.

The American agenda takes up the applications of the principles under heads (1) territorial integrity, (2) administrative integrity (3) open door and equality of commercial and industrial opportunities (4) concessions, mortgages, or preferential economic privileges, (5) development of railways, including plans relating to the Chinese eastern, (6) preferential railroad rates, (7) status of existing commitments.

Under status of commitments, the American program states: "It is expected that opportunity will be afforded to consider and to reach an understanding with respect to unsettled questions involving the nature and scope of commitments under which claims of rights may hereafter be asserted."

Revives Old Controversies.
This is dangerous territory for the Japanese. The secret treaties of 1918 have never come to light. The secret treaties have not been made known. Under the Chinese proposals all treaties would be thrown on the table and tested as to their validity.

The Japanese may not agree to this. It throws open old controversies, including all the treaties embodied in the twenty-one demands. The published instructions to the Japanese delegation say these are to be regarded as accomplished facts and that the other powers are to be led to see that it would be useless to reopen this question.

Assuming that the treaties are valid, even though granted under duress, and that the various powers are willing to make public all commitments relating to China, the next part of the proposal which is causing the Japanese to pause is the clause in the Chinese proposals which states that the treaties, if valid, must be harmonized with each other and with the principles adopted by the conference.

ARMS PARLEY DRAWS SIGHTSEERS AT WASHINGTON

Large crowds are constantly about Continental hall, in Washington, where the conference for the limitation of armaments is holding its sessions. The representatives of the nations are objects of great interest, and all their movements are carefully studied by the sightseers.

BRIAND TO PRESENT FRANCE'S ARMY CASE; GO HOME NEXT WEEK

Washington, D. C., Nov. 17.—(Special.)—Premier Briand will present the position of France in regard to land armament at the next plenary session of the conference on limitation of armament, which will be held next Monday morning.

The premier, after having placed the French government's viewpoint on this subject before the conference, will leave Washington next Wednesday and sail from New York for France on the following Saturday.

The announcement of his departure at this stage of the conference's proceedings does not come in any sense as a surprise, because he made it known before he left Paris that it would not be possible for him to remain in the United States more than a few weeks, owing to the important problems at home pressing for his attention.

could be given to certain rights which the Japanese have acquired in Manchuria and eastern inner Mongolia. A Japanese delegate recently stated that his country would come out of this with "added prestige." Under the new code of international morality that has grown up in the world during the last few years Japan never could add to her prestige by insisting on her legal rights in the treaties and commitments.

Japan does not want to be questioned about her Manchurian leases. And if she is she wants and will insist on a single standard being applied. The principle must go to England and to France as well. But it must be understood that she wants to retain these special rights in industrial and commercial aspects only, and will make it plain before the conference.

Here is where America's traditional policy, now reaffirmed again, and Japan's national interests—her safety as a first rate power—come into conflict, and this is what the whole far Pacific question revolves around.

U. S.-BRITISH-JAP PACT TO REBUILD CHINA PLANNED

Baron Hayashi Tells of Tokio's Scheme.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Copyright: 1921: By The Chicago Tribune.]
LONDON, Nov. 17.—When the far eastern question comes before the Washington conference Japan intends to press for joint action on the part of America, Great Britain, and Japan to restore order and to reestablish unity in China. This information was given to the press this morning by Baron Hayashi, the Japanese ambassador to London.

"It seems to me that the most important question from an eastern point of view is unity in China and an end of the fighting there," the ambassador said. "The only way to accomplish this is for the powers concerned to give China kindly assistance, not mere words, but concrete action and ideas, enabling China to restart her life on a sound basis."

Wants Unity on Principles.
"America, England, and Japan must agree to certain principles for the treatment of China, and these must include allowing China, so far as she is able, to handle her own affairs. Possibly joint intervention may be necessary, but it should be the intervention of friends and helpers, and if military force is needed the Chinese should supply it themselves. They will need money, however, which must be supplied by Japan and America and probably England, and the powers supplying it must see to it that it is wisely expended."

"It should be made clear from the start, however, that there is no intention to invade the territorial integrity of China. If force is necessary to help China, it will be only an extension of the present principle under which the powers have small forces in Peking and Tientsin and gunboats on the Yangtze. I am afraid the idea may not be agreeable to China, as she will regard it as control by foreigners, but we must try to overcome the objections and make it clear that we will withdraw immediately when China is united and orderly."

On Anglo-Jap Treaty.
Discussing the Anglo-Japanese treaty, Baron Hayashi said it is renewed it must conform with certain conditions, the chief of which were that it must satisfy American public opinion and must conform with the covenant of the league of nations. I pointed out the widespread belief in the United States

CONFERENCE SLOW? WORLD TOOK 6 DAYS, AND SEE THE MESS!

Washington, D. C., Nov. 17.—(Special.)—An inquisitive person met a leader of the British naval delegation today and asked him if satisfactory progress were being made.

"My Lord!" exclaimed the distinguished Britisher. "We have been two days at work on the most complicated problem ever presented the admiralties of the world. Does the public think we ought to have finished everything by now? What do you expect in less than a week?"

"Well, the world was made in six days," smartly replied the inquisitive one. "I have heard that disputed," said the British fighting man, "and even if it were built in six days, maybe it was not the best sort of job. It does not look as if it were."

The men at the county hospital early this morning were still unconscious. A burner in the gas range was open and also a jet in the bedroom. The police are investigating to learn whether the men turned on the gas in carrying out a suicide compact or were accidentally overcome.

LIMIT TO NAVIES RESTS ON CHINA, FRENCHMEN SAY

If One Question Fails All Fail, Is View.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 17.—(By the Associated Press.)—In discussing the French suggestion concerning China, one Japanese leader said tonight that it was indispensable to Japan that she should maintain her jurisdiction over the leased territory of South Manchuria, of which the port is Dairen or Port Arthur, but that Japan might be ready to discuss a plan of making Port Arthur a commercial port and not a naval or military base.

BY HENRY WALES.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 17.—(Special.)—Success of the plan to reduce naval armaments hinges on a solution of the Chinese question, in the opinion of the French delegation.

Unless the nine powers can reach an agreement on principles governing their activities and policies in China and the far east, the French believe that the scrapping of old warships and the ten year naval holiday cannot be adhered to.

The two day adjournment of the far east committee, necessitated by Baron Shidehara's illness, permits the Japanese delegation to communicate by cable with its government at Tokyo and at the same time to sound out other delegations on their proposed attitude toward the dual China-American program, as set forth in the Chinese demands and the state department's agenda.

France Accepts China's Claims.
M. Albert Sarraut, French minister of colonies and former governor of Indo-China, France's colony of 20,000,000 on the Annam peninsula, told newsmen complete agreement that the French delegation accepts in principle the main contentions of the Chinese claims.

"We are quite favorable to the 'open door' policy and believe that China must have territorial integrity and administrative autonomy," M. Sarraut said. "If in the past attempts have been made against her integrity it has been done as a form of guarantee to protect lives and property of foreigners."

"The French delegation must examine the problem in detail to see on what points it can make sacrifices and on what points it must make reservations. We agree with America."

"Regarding examination of the Chinese and Pacific problems which do not affect France directly, this delegation will be actuated by the desire to maintain peace. In this principle we are in complete agreement with the United States government."

"France has ardent hopes that the Chinese-Pacific problem may be settled at this conference. When an absence begins to form it must be limited to ease the pressure, otherwise it continues to swell and inflate and may eventually produce serious results. The Chinese problem has been a menace and the attention of many peoples have been riveted to it for some time. If we can get all the powers interested to take a broad, humane, conciliatory viewpoint on this question much may be accomplished."

Both Problems Allied.
"This conference must succeed in its efforts to solve the Chinese-Pacific problem to a certain extent, else the other objective, limitation of naval armaments, which is hinged on it, will suffer."

"We have taken up disarmament and the far east separately, but it cannot be denied that anxieties of powers regarding the far east have exerted a certain unrest."

"France is for peace in the Pacific, there has been enough war, and she is ready to make sacrifices to help obtain an agreement."

"And we must remember that there are untold millions of this yellow people. If we do not treat them fairly and squarely, they may one day rise and turn against us."

KATO FILLS JAPANESE PRESS ROUND ROBIN FULL OF ARROWS

Washington, D. C., Nov. 17.—(By the Associated Press.)—Japanese newspaper correspondents—of whom there is a small army in Washington—had a plan for a mass meeting tonight which was to have resulted in a round robin to Admiral Baron Kato, head of the Japanese delegation, expressing their opinion that Japan should subscribe to the American proposals for naval limitation without the reservations which have been forecast.

All proceeded serenely until Admiral Kato heard about it. Then the Japanese correspondents received a summons to appear at the baron's headquarters.

No American reporters having been invited, and as Admiral Kato spoke in Japanese, the version of what he said is necessarily a second hand one. It is understood, however, that the admiral told the journalists, with some fluency and emphasis, that the Japanese government rather than the newspapers would determine the course to be pursued, and he outlined a lucidity, characteristically oriental, how he would regard any such action as the correspondents proposed. There was no mass meeting and no round robin.

DELEGATES MAY ASK A "HOLIDAY" ON BANQUETING

Washington, D. C., Nov. 17.—(By the Associated Press.)—Some of the delegates to the arms conference and the long train of dignitaries and sub-dignitaries which accompany them are beginning to show the effects of the grind.

Not the grind of work, although that is enough, but the grind of the continuous performance of luncheons, dinners, receptions, and late suppers which has been going on since last week.

Many prominent international dignitaries have already begun to call for "a holiday."

It was a visiting foreigner who recently remarked: "Take me where prohibition is, and I'll tell you how I like it."

Released by Customer

Louis Sacks, 1314 South Racine avenue, a butcher, was robbed of $50 and then locked in the icebox by two robbers last night. A customer released him.

Hails Big Charleston Plant.
Another interesting problem arising is what to do with the $22,000,000 government armor plate plant now nearing completion at Charleston, W. Va. The plant was to employ thousands of men. With the construction of heavily armored ships suspended for ten years it is not likely it will be necessary to operate this costly Charleston plant.

The character of this plant, however, makes it probable that the salvage would be considerable.

FRENCH SENATE MOVES TO BUILD 60 SUBMARINES

BY JOHN CLAYTON.

[Copyright: 1921: By The Chicago Tribune.]
PARIS, Nov. 17.—The French senate's answer to Arthur J. Balfour's demand in behalf of the British government that the construction of submarines be further limited under the Washington conference plan is a hurried recommendation for an increase in the nation's submarine program. It has been definitely learned that the new program, if accepted, calls for sixty large submarines to be completed within five years, with the keels of twenty-four to be laid at once.

The decision regarding French submarines has been adopted only within the last few days. Until then the experts have been quarreling over the types proposed. While complete details as to the details of the models chosen are lacking, it is understood that they will displace 2,000 tons submerged and embody the latest improvements of the fleet type of submarine. France's submarine tonnage will thus approach that of Great Britain and the United States.

The whole French press is in arms against Mr. Balfour's proposals. Journals representing every shade of opinion declare that France cannot expect to protect its Mediterranean colonies without sufficient sea forces and that submarines are the one hope for defense against an invasion of its coasts. The old enmity towards England and the fear of an attack from across the channel are cropping out openly for the first time since the war.

The leaders are trying to induce the school teachers to join the strikers.

JAPAN CALLS KATO'S ACTION MASTER STROKE

Means Scrapping of Only U. S. Ships Feared.

BY CHARLES DAILEY.
[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
Copyright 1921: By The Chicago Tribune.
TOKIO, Nov. 17.—Admiral Kato matched Secretary of State Hughes' boldness by accepting "in principle" the American disarmament proposals without waiting for the views of the Japanese cabinet. By this action he has shown himself to be the biggest man in Japan.

The official copy of the Hughes proposals only arrived in Tokyo on Tuesday and were considered by the cabinet on the same afternoon. Without waiting for advice from Tokyo, Admiral Kato accepted, he being confident of the government's approval, but knowing that the Japanese public was behind him whatever the government might think.

It seems certain that Admiral Kato acted to cut off in its infancy propaganda which was fast set afoot here among the shipbuilding and militarist interests to get a definite promise for permission to replace ships and also for the saving of the two ships about to be launched and in addition the Mutu. But Admiral Kato saw a bigger game since America agrees to scrap all of its proposed battle cruisers, two of which are equal to any three battleships in Pacific waters, and he left no opportunity for a possible revision of this policy.

The opinion today is that Admiral Kato has made a master stroke not only for the peace of the world but for the security of Japan. With this accomplished it appears quite possible that Japan will yield gracefully on all Asiatic questions, but will expect America to forego its fortifications in Guam, Dutch Harbor, and Aleutian Islands.

The bulk of newspaper and other comment holds that America and Great Britain should not be permitted to have naval bases in the far east sufficient to concentrate a greater fleet than Japan is granted under the Hughes plan.

Viscount Okochi, the political counselor of the navy department, says that allowances must be made for the British and American superiority in industrial resources.

The affair between the two was short-lived, but fervid and was punctuated by a $2,000 diamond ring which, when the fallout came, he wanted back. Miss Walker did not at first wish to return it, hence the suit.

BOY "FALLS OUT WITH GIRL" AND FORGES A CHECK

At the detective bureau 17-year-old Peter Sedgwick of Waterloo, Ia., waits for officers of his home town to come and take him home. A "falling out" with a fair junior in high school and the forging of his mother's name to an $85 check were the cause of his troubles.

Yesterday after the misunderstanding with the girl, he packed up his violin and went forth to make a living by playing on street corners. The forged check for $85 supplied the funds.

First he went to Louisville, and then walked to Chicago to his sister, Mary, a dietitian in the county hospital. He was arrested there yesterday.

Sunday Dinner in Henrici's

If "an optimist is one who sees in the dark a light that is not there," a pessimist is one who so disposes of his burdens as to provide stumbling blocks both for himself and, with generous negligence, for his neighbors.

But on Sundays one may lay aside burdens of many kinds and, in calm thought, plan better ways to carry them. And nothing is more conducive to such a purpose than a family dinner with the preparation of which no member of the household has had the least concern.

Why not a family dinner in Henrici's next Sunday?

ABSOLUTE command of phrasing is no longer a mere chimera, but a splendid reality. The Kimball Phrasonome Piano entirely eliminates mechanical effects, giving the real human touch. The delicate and sensitive Phrasonome control responds instantly, enabling the performer to give the exact shading to any individual word or syllable in song, or single motif in any composition. A demonstration will interest and amaze you. Come today.

Recent price reductions apply on Phrasonome Pianos—in fact, on the complete line of Kimball musical instruments—a range of $50 to $200.

YOU EAGER TO TELL HIS SIDE IN FARRAR SUIT

Will Ask Court to Consolidate Cases.

New York, Nov. 17.—[Special.]—Lou Farrar today made another reply to the charges against him in the divorce suit filed by his wife, Geraldine Farrar. He refused to see reporters, but gave an interview through his attorneys, Arthur Schwartz and Harry Steinfield. They quote him as saying:

"I am not a millionaire, and I must make my living. I shall need extra money to fight the high priced lawyers engaged by my wife. But I am going to fight to the finish."

"I am not vindictive, but I want vindication. No man ever suffered as I have at the hands of a woman whose actions and peculiar moral outlook make her incapable of being a real wife to a man."

Los Angeles Fair Play.
"The American public believes in the play and I think they are going to give me permission to present my story. I want a chance to tell my story before a legal tribunal."

Tellegen and his lawyers are preparing to spring a surprise. They will ask the Supreme court to consolidate for trial the suit brought by Tellegen and the counter action tried by Geraldine. They cite this section of the civil practice act to support their motion:

"Actions may be consolidated whenever it can be done without prejudice to a substantial right."

To Resist Tellegen Move.
Miss Farrar's attorneys, Samuel Untermyer and his son, Alvin, are expected to resist the Tellegen move. Samuel Untermyer in the secret proceedings before the Supreme Court tried to get the case dismissed as "scandalous" allegations made by Tellegen in support of his charges.

Thus far the Untermyers have succeeded in barring the Tellegen story. If they succeed in their reported plan to have their divorce action tried separately they may be able to prevent Tellegen's charges from ever becoming public.

Treasures which were accumulated by George M. Pullman, founder of the Pullman company, and his widow are to be sold at public auction beginning Nov. 23. ## 'PRICES AS USUAL,' LATEST WORD ON THANKS TURKEY

Don't count too much on "reasonably priced" turkey for Thanksgiving dinner, for the festive bird bids fair to cost almost as much as it did last year, despite a large crop, cheap feed, etc.

"Turkeys will be at least 15 cents a pound cheaper this year," it was forecast six weeks ago. Yesterday they were only 5 cents cheaper, and—

"We hope to keep them down to about 50 to 55 cents a pound," the manager of a large wholesale concern stated last night, "but farmers are not shipping, and it was too warm to mature them properly in some districts, and most farmers are asking high prices, and—"

There were several other reasons why there may be another jump. But, as always happens, the housewife was told that "ducks, geese, and chickens are very reasonably priced," in case she cares to accept a substitute for the turkey dinner.

Motorist Finds Abandoned Baby in His Automobile
Stepping into his automobile yesterday in front of his home, 3345 Washington boulevard, M. Chapman found a two-weeks old baby, wrapped in a pink blanket, bearing no marks of identification. Chapman took the infant to the Pullman street police station, and it was turned over to St. Vincent's orphanage.

13 JURORS MAY BE USED TO TRY 'FATTY' ARBUCKLE

Extra One in the Case of Need, Judge Says.

BY EDWARD DOHERTY.

San Francisco, Cal., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—For one moment, late this afternoon, there was a jury in Judge Harold Louderback's court, ready to try Roscoe "Fatty" Arbuckle on a charge of manslaughter growing out of the death of Miss Virginia Rappe.

The next moment there were only eleven prospective jurors in the panel, and the fight for the twelfth was once more in progress.

Five women and seven men were about to be sworn in, and the judge had indicated there will be a thirteenth, or alternate, juror also, when up rose George Morgan, to say that he had re-examined his mind, and found in it a doubt as to the value of circumstantial evidence.

Deputy District Attorney Milton U'Ren and Gavin McNab, who is leading the counsel for the defense, examined him at length and finally he was excused for cause.

The state used up its last peremptory challenge and then wished to excuse another man—Lawrence Granfield, who said he believed Arbuckle was innocent and that he would take some evidence to reverse that opinion.

The defense resisted the challenge and the judge questioned the venireman. It was 6 o'clock and the judge decided to put the matter over until tomorrow.

It is probable Granfield will be excused for cause. It is possible also that the panel will be challenged tomorrow and that the arguments will begin.

TWENTY-FIVE AUTOS STOLEN IN DAY.
Twenty-five automobiles were reported stolen in the twenty-four hours ending at 8 o'clock yesterday morning.

BIBB'S IN BERLIN! SOME GUY IN SELMA MUST DIG UP $25

BY GEORGE SELDES.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

BERLIN, Nov. 17.—This will notify the world that Capt. Joseph Bibb of Selma, Ala., has captured Berlin. Capt. Bibb is one of the few members of America's army of 4,000,000 who told his folks that he would get to Berlin and did.

Today Capt. Bibb blew into the Tribune office at 1 Unter den Linden, rallied around the flag, and said:

"Say, can I get my name in the paper?"

We told him that he could if he had done something unusual.

"Well, I have," replied the captain. "I got to Berlin. In 1917 I joined up and told everybody in Alabama that I would reach Berlin. Some guy bet me $25 that I would not. I took him. I drilled and begged while the war waged and ended, but in exactly four years I got to Berlin as a member of the American army on the Rhine. Put that in the papers and I will get my twenty-five."

WOMAN ASPHYXIATED.

Neighbors forced their way into the home of Mrs. Constantine Kowalski, 1444 Cleveland avenue, yesterday, and found her dead in the kitchen. Gas was escaping from an open burner in the stove. The police believe death was accidental.

COUNTY REALTY BOARD CHIEF DEFENDS MAYOR

Anthony W. Stannmeyer, president of the Cook County Real Estate board, whose recent invitation to Mayor James Couzens of Detroit to speak in Chicago on traction matters was refused because Mr. Couzens disapproved of Mayor Thompson's type of leadership, replied by wire to the Detroit mayor last night.

Mr. Stannmeyer points out to Mayor Couzens that Thompson was born in America, whereas Couzens was born in a British colony, and adds:

"Mayor Thompson is viciously attacked here in Chicago by a powerful group of criminal profiteers who know no god or flag or country but the god of Mammon and the flag of piracy. He is attacked by the lobby, today, and the traitorous elements of our country who would barter our republic for a place in the British empire. He is attacked by the British-American big business, financial and public utility interests, who kindle and drive the honest, industrious loyal citizens of America into socialism and bolshevism. If a man is to be reckoned by the enemies he has then the mayor of Chicago is the greatest American in public life."

Mr. Stannmeyer also criticized Mayor Couzens for showing his animosity toward "a great American."

Getting Clothes Through to You

Two things are necessary in order to enable you to get the best clothing made.

First: Somebody has to make it for you.

And somebody does. The greatest creative tailors in the country, backed by great manufacturers and business men, are devoting their talent—most of them—to ready-to-wear clothes.

Second: Somebody has to sell it to you.

That's where we come in.

It isn't merely a question of getting fine garments into the store.

It's a question of getting the right man and the right clothing together; of understanding fine garments and the men who enjoy them.

Lots of fine clothing goes on the racks right there. Retailers have got to be geared up to the big men that are turning it out and to the big men that want it.

Having dealt for years with men who understand and enjoy dress, it's perfectly natural that we should be able to complete the work begun by the creative tailor and the business man behind him, of providing you with the best of clothing.

(Capper Forty-Fives, our $45 suits, illustrate this in their field as well as our $85-$90 suits.)

INDIA SNARLS WITH REVOLT AT FUTURE MASTER

Riots, Parades, Strikes, and Closed Shops.

BOMBAY, Nov. 17.—[United News.]—Wild disturbances and anti-British demonstrations followed on the heels of the splendid official reception given to the Prince of Wales here, and armed troops were called out to put down the rioters. Some casualties in the native quarters are reported. All public transportation service has been suspended.

At Calcutta followers of Mahatma Gandhi, preacher of the policy of non-cooperation with the British, staged a great demonstration of protest against the prince's visit to India, parading with flags and banners. Gandhi himself was a leader in the disturbance. Business in both cities is restricted and disorganized. There are no conveyances in service, and no coolies are working. Armed cars are patrolling the streets.

DARING REBELS IN SOUTH

The Tribune herewith gives an eyewitness account of fighting between the daring Moplah rebels in southern India and the British sepoys.

BY THOMAS RYAN.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

CALCUTTA, Nov. 17.—[Shiff fighting is continuing here in the Malabar coast region on an increasing scale. During the fighting one Moplah armed with a sword charged a platoon of sepoys with rifles. For 100 yards across wet rice fields he charged, finally falling three feet from his goal with seventeen wounds. I saw one Moplah armed with a sword wait in ambush for a platoon of sepoys with rifles. He was shot down before he had moved ten feet, dying with the word "Allah" on his lips.

In the British convoy were a number of captured Moplah women. One recognized as her brother the single warrior who had died in his vain attempt to attack the sepoys. With a heart-rending scream she sank beside his body. British officers, touched by her grief, tried to quiet her, and then they led her back to camp.

Women Are Freed.

The Gurkha sepoys hate the Moplah women, whom they call spies. However, these women were finally released after being ordered to advise their husbands to surrender if they wished to escape death.

When cornered the Moplahs fight to their last breath. I saw one whose body had been pierced in two places by a bayonet continue to slash at the sepoys as he lay on his back. One of the rebel warriors escaped what appeared to be certain capture when a bullet from a sepoy rifle hit a hornet's nest. The hornet flew toward their disturber, and in the mixup the Moplah made his getaway.

Hindus in Flight.

This country is a tangle of coconut, sugarcane, and mango underbrush, with an occasional rice field. As we advanced we could see smoke to the south from the rifles of the troops attempting to drive the Moplahs into eastern Malabar. Hindu refugees passed us carrying all their possessions. Others remain in their homes, trying to curry favor with both sides through fear for their lives. Some act as spies for the

New York, Nov. 17.—Dr. Francisco

Moplahs, while others wreck the Moplahs' homes in reprisal for the latter's acts.

In August the Moplahs believed caliphate rule in India would be established. While their hopes have dwindled, they still are ready to die for Allah. Moslems elsewhere are afraid to sympathize openly with the Moplahs on account of their outrages against the Hindus, with whom the Moslems are associated in the self-rule movement. They confine themselves to protesting against the alleged reprisals.

Demand Sultan's Rule.

The Moplahs demand the restoration of the sultan of Turkey and the departure of the British from Malabar. The present revolt began when caliphate agitation was fanned to include hatred for the Hindu landlords and the rule of the Christians.

The rebels lack sufficient arms, but this is counterbalanced by the jungle refuges, which enable them to keep up protracted resistance.

MRS. M. A. HANNA, WIDOW OF OHIO SENATOR, DIES

Washington, D. C., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—Mrs. Marcus A. Hanna, widow of Senator Hanna of Ohio, died at her residence here tonight, after an illness of little more than a week. She was 78 years old. Her son-in-law and daughter, Senator Medill McCormick of Illinois, and Mrs. McCormick, were with her during her illness and when the end came tonight. She is survived also by her brother, James Ford

Rhodes, the historian; and by another daughter, Mrs. E. W. Parsons of Cleveland, O.

End Came Suddenly.

About ten years ago Mrs. Hanna suffered a slight recurrence of an old illness, which did not threaten to become serious until within the last three days.

At 5 o'clock this afternoon her heart failed, and at 11 o'clock she died.

Despite her advanced age Mrs.

Hanna had been well and active, and until a week ago last Wednesday was able to go about and to receive her friends.

Since the death of Senator Hanna seventeen years ago Mrs. Hanna has made her home in Washington, occupying an apartment at 16th and M streets with her cousin and companion, Miss Phelps.

Spends Summer at Seal Harbor.

As has long been her custom, she spent the last summer at Seal Harbor, with her only surviving brother, Mr.

Rhodes, and this year remained until late in the autumn.

Mrs. Hanna was a daughter of Daniel Ford Rhodes, who founded the coal business which still exists as the M. A.

Hanna company. He was the first to run coal barges on the great lakes.

Final arrangements have not been made for the funeral, which will be held early next week. The body will be taken to Cleveland for interment in Forest Hills cemetery, where Mr.

Hanna is buried.

MORTIMER CALLS AIDS TO CONFER ON SMALL CASE

State's Attorney Mortimer of Sangamon county has called all attorneys who will assist him in the prosecution of Gov. Small on charges of embezzling state funds to a conference in Springfield today. No hint of the purpose was given out.

Among the surmises was that the state is preparing to go to actual trial of the case immediately after Judge

C. C. Edwards of Waukegan rules on a motion to quash on which argument will begin on Dec. 5. Mr. Mortimer is confident his indictment will stand

Something New!

Apartment Cabinet Equipped with a Victrola

You can now get a real Victrola in a Period Cabinet at small cost. This is a phenomenal offer. It is in console type, mahogany finish, with flat top, fancy grill doors, and is modeled in the graceful Sheraton period. As yet we have only a limited quantity. We expect more, but if you want one we advise you to come in early. You cannot equal this value. Outfit complete is priced at only

$112.50

Test It at Home!

With a choice selection of records
you will be delighted with this Victrola.
When you play a record, note how distinctly and evenly the tone is reproduced. It is as if the artist himself stood before you. Actually, you can hardly distinguish between the original performance and the reproduction.
Even the most difficult piano tones are played. Overtones which confuse the music are absent. The richly sonorous notes of the piano are repeated clearly.

The Soaring High C

Again, when you play vocal records, watch for the high notes. The soprano voice is one of the most difficult to reproduce. The Victrola does it correctly.
The rare, soaring high C note is imprisoned in the Victrola records. The music is just as unflawed as when it floated upwards from the throat of the singer. These are but two of the tests—the most difficult ones, however. In many other ways the Victrola, in less than a half dozen performances, will proclaim its musical quality.

This Special Outfit

The outfit includes the Apartment Period Cabinet, Victrola style No. 6, ten 10-inch double faced 85c records of your own selection, fibre needle cutter, package 100 fibre needles, record brush, three 10-inch albums, and two 12-inch albums.
Small cash down payment, balance in convenient monthly payments.

sponse of a large public. And gratifying to those who have visited it, in satisfied expectancy and the enjoyment of high examples of exquisite furniture and home embellishment displayed in a setting suited to their beauty and importance. Although the formal opening comes to an end this week, the spirit of welcome associated with it is extended in perpetuity to lovers of beauty who merely wish to enjoy it here, as well as to those who wish to add its treasures to their home environment. The store is especially interesting at this time in satisfying things for Christmas giving—many of them quite inexpensive

ONE KILLED, ONE LIKELY TO DIE, IN ELEVATED CRASH

Scores Cut and Bruised in Wreck Due to Fog.

In the heavy fog that hung over Chicago early yesterday Guard Patrick McGuire was killed, ten others seriously injured, and scores badly shaken and cut with broken glass when two trains of the Chicago and Oak Park elevated line crashed into each other at Lake street and Crawford avenue.

Both trains were east bound. Frank P. Doyle, 4502 Park avenue, motorman of the rear train, couldn't see the train until he was "right on it," he told Capt. James Gleason while held for questioning.

Two Cars Demolished.
The impact demolished both cars, sweeping passengers off their feet and shattering all the windows in the ten cars. The rear car of the front train fell against the station platform.

Firemen worked with axes and acetylene torches for more than an hour to extricate McGuire, caught and crushed between the two cars. At the Garfield Park hospital his legs were amputated. His death came four hours later.

Walter Griffin, 15 years old, 4912 Augusta street, injured internally and with a leg crushed, is expected to die, he is at the Robert Burns hospital.

Crash on Steam Road.
Samuel Mahon, 1540 North Artesian boulevard, and Morris Mathison, 2438 West 72d place, were seriously injured when a Chicago and Northwestern engine, in a heavy fog, hit the rear of a Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul freight train on the Chicago Junction railway tracks at 40th and South Roy streets.

DUMMY 'BOMB' FOUND IN LOOP JUST CANDLES
Three candles, painted to resemble sticks of dynamite, loosely wrapped and placed by the side of the Adams street window of Peacock's jewelry store, caused some excitement yesterday afternoon and held crowds of shoppers at a respectful distance.

Sgt. Lawrence McDonough of the detective bureau's bomb squad was summoned by Mounted Policemen P. J. Boyle, who discovered the supposed dynamite, and he soon exposed the hoax.

SERIOUSLY ILL

MARION DAVIES.

New York, Nov. 17.—[Special.]—Marion Davies, motion picture actress, is seriously ill with pneumonia at her home, 331 Riverside drive. Five physicians and several nurses are in attendance and her parents, Magistrate and Mrs. Bernard Douras, who were hastily summoned last night, have been constantly at her bedside. It was said today that the physicians regarded her illness as having passed the crisis and they hope she is on the way to recovery.

Miss Davies, noted for her beauty, became a film star about two years ago. She began her stage career as a dancer in Charles Dillingham's production of "Chin-Chin." She later appeared in "The Century Girl," "Miss 1916," "Oh, Boy!" "Words and Music," and the Ziegfeld Follies.

COLOR PRINTERS ADOPT OPEN SHOP, TYPOTHETAE TOLD

Announcement was made by the Franklin Typothetæ last night that every colorotype house in Chicago is now operating on an "open shop" basis, and that several of them have workmen enough to keep their presses running on emergency orders. At a meeting of the Typothetæ association, embracing the open job shops, announcement was made of eight colorotype concerns which have transferred their membership from the Franklin association, comprising the union shops, to the open shop branch.

ASK REVIEW OF TURIVAS TAX EVASION CASE

Assistant District Attorney Robert A. Milroy appeared before the United States Circuit Court of Appeals yesterday to petition for a review of the hearing held some time ago before Commissioner Lewis F. Mason, in which the latter qualified a search warrant to bring into court the books of Briggs & Turivas, iron and steel workers, 110 South Dearborn street.

The officials of the company, Carl R. Briggs, Joseph H. Turivas, and Albert I. Lauser, were indicted for defrauding the government out of $200,000 by making false income tax returns.

WOMAN FINED FOR KNIFE PLAY.
Mrs. Ethel Panzer, who tried to stab a policeman Wednesday night and then tried to cut herself with a penknife, was fined $50 and costs in the South Clark street court yesterday for disorderly conduct.

$17,304 ALIMONY IS ASKED BY WIFE WHO 'NAMES' PETS

William Dilley, head of a janitor supply house at 22 North Wells street, who, his wife charges, has made his home in Berwyn for a kennel for cats and dogs, yesterday was asked to pay temporary alimony at the rate of $17,304 a year.

The petition was filed in the Superior court by Ernest E. Stout, counsel for Mrs. Dilley, and asks for $7,000 attorney's fees.

In her original suit for divorce Mrs. Dilley declared she had been confined in a shabby bedroom by her husband for the last five years, while his pets had the run of the house. In his answer to her bill Dilley declared the dogs and the cats belonged to her.

Mrs. Dilley says her husband's $500,000 estate was amassed from $5,000 of her money as a nucleus.

FOUND: $57,000, BUT NO TRACE OF THE OWNER

In Charles S. Neumann, president of a flour company at 130 North Wells street, is found the case of Mr. Diogenes reversed. Instead of looking for an honest man, he is an honest man, with a pocketbook containing $57,000, looking for its owner.

Tuesday, about to get into his car, Mr. Neumann saw a muddy wallet in the street. It turned out to be a fortune in notes and checks. Although the name of the owner was in the purse, Mr. Neumann's efforts to find him have proved unsuccessful.

check for $20,000 and a note for $25,000 were among the contents.

John Mack, chief deputy clerk of the County court, advised the finder to put the money in his vaults until the owner showed up, and this was done.

"If the owner does not claim the purse within a reasonable time I'm going to split the $57,000 between the Red Cross and the child war sufferers of Europe. If he does claim his money, and gives a reward, I'll split the reward the same way," Mr. Neumann said yesterday.

WHERE IS BLANCHE BRADY?
Search is on for Blanche Brady, who charged Walter Martin with stealing her fur coat and kicking her. Miss Brady did not appear when the case was called yesterday, and it has been continued until Nov. 20.

CHINA AND THE UNITED STATES.

It would be to American advantage if China were her own mistress with her ports, railroads, provinces and cities, her resources and her industries her own. We are not much afraid that such a China would start a military fraction of her millions rampaging as a yellow peril. The Chinese are not like war enough for that.

We could trade with China better if other peoples, squatting on Chinese soil, were not blocking railroads and closing up areas and markets. Something like friendship has grown up between the United States and China, although Chinese used to be maltreated in America and mobbed on the Pacific coast and although the boxers did not leave Americans outside of their operations. Americans were foreign devils and Chinese were fair game for a long time, but now there is respect for the United States in China and some regard for Chinese in America.

We have nothing particular to give up in China. We have no territory and no particular sphere of influence. We loan money—and have some difficulty in getting it back—sell locomotives, do some engineering and get all the trade we can, working against competitors who have territorial domain and spheres and who impose restrictions.

Chinese prosper under American rule as far as we know in Hawaii. They are pretty much kept out of competition with American workmen here and we are on good terms with the largest Asiatic nation although we constantly are in difficulties with the most powerful.

A free China, unified, decently governed and self-governed and controlling its own destinies, would be advantageous to the United States and anything the United States can do within the ordinary good offices of a friend probably will be done. But that stops short of involvement in difficulties because of China.

China's latent power is tremendous, but it has not kept her from passing from one exploiter to another and from one group to another. She chose to dislike war to the extent of not fighting it successfully, although, like other pacifist nations fighting a great deal of it, losing many men and generally losing battles, cities, and territory.

China's latent power was sufficient to stand up under defeat and partly absorb Asiatic conquerors, such as Mongols and Manchus, but in later centuries the Chinese have not elected to defend themselves effectively and exploiting Europeans have taken what they wanted or about as much as they wanted. It is not a peculiar European idea that a rich and powerful country should be drained. The Asiatics had it before and they have it now. The United States has been superficially more moral because it has not had hands of traders so aggressive, a military aristocracy so aggressive, or any pressure of want at home.

Therefore the United States does not figure so much with the sword in China and it has not used a whole province as the grave of a single missionary.

French, Germans, Russians, Portuguese, British, and Japanese all have been sitting down to the Chinese goose and traces of it are on all of them. Our diplomacy has antagonized only the Japanese of all these invaders, but we have made it a point in recent years to tell the Japanese that they could not go anywhere, east, west, north, or south. That irritates a nation which is able to protect itself and it does not help the nation which is unable to defend itself.

The American policy may be that China should be for the Chinese. That policy may also include their troubles. They also are for the Chinese.

If the United States can back the invaders of China with moral suasion, argument, or shrewd dealing in arrangements it will be fine, but if it backs itself into serious trouble it will be criminal.

All the doors which could be opened in China are not worth a serious war for the United States. The Chinese have their regeneration within their own power when they choose to apply their strength.

SANITATION AND THE SUBWAY.

The "subway now" is getting some popular discussion. It ought to have it. The people have paid $30,000,000 for rapid transit and a five-cent fare. They have not got it and they ought to talk about it. Some object that a subway is not sanitary. It is underground. It is, but it can be ventilated, and if any one thinks present street car conditions are sanitary he must deny that there is such a thing as a germ.

The present street cars afford only one opportunity of rapid communication. That is the rapid communication of diseases in the packed, indecently packed, sardine cans which Chicago uses to go to work and home again.

ASSERTING AMERICAN INDEPENDENCE.

The contest in the St. Constantine Greek Orthodox church is significant. It seems a representative of King Constantine and the state church of Greece, with the aid of the consul of Greece, proposed to take over the affairs of the church. This has been successfully resisted by American Greeks, who by a vote of 4 to 1 supported an injunction proceeding to restrain the attempt.

The situation is as if the bishop of the Church of England representing King George as head of the English official church, aided by the British consul, should attempt to take over the affairs of St. James. American Episcopallians would promptly resist such action, and the American Greeks have shown the same spirit of independence.

The Protestant Episcopal church in America disassociated itself from the British crown after the revolution, the difficulty of episcopal succession being met by an act of parliament empowering the archbishop of Canterbury or York to consecrate bishops in other countries without requiring an oath of allegiance to the British king.

It shows an astonishing ignorance of facts that the government of Constantine should make an attempt to extend the powers of Greek monarchy and its official hierarchy over American citizens. Our fellow citizens of the Greek faith have shown that they are Americans and intend to remain Americans. Constantine's representative had better go back to Athens and tell his royal master to wake up.

THE PRICE OF COAL.

W. L. Ballou, associate editor of the Black Diamond, a coal trade journal, in a letter to this Tribune presents recent editorials which charged that the price of coal is too high and must be brought down before a complete return to industrial normalcy and prosperity can be accomplished. He declares we are unfair to the coal business and supports his views with the assertion that the bulk of steam coal produced in the last ten months has been sold at a loss.

Assuming, for the sake of the discussion, that this is correct, it does not alter this Tribune's contention that the price of coal is too high and is delaying a return to normal business. Coal is a basic commodity. Its cost enters into the cost of every article manufactured and distributed in this country. When coal is high, manufacturing and transportation costs are high, and prices to consumers are high without a corresponding advantage to manufacturers and employees. The effort should be to reduce such basic costs. It can be done through the reduction in steam coal prices.

The coal operators undoubtedly will agree with our correspondent that they are already selling steam coal at a loss and cannot be expected to take a greater loss or recoup themselves by adding still more to the prices of domestic coal, from which they have been covering their losses. We will admit freely that they cannot be expected to do business indefinitely at a loss. But in other lines when a business man finds he is losing he seeks the leaks and stops them or falls and is supplanted by a better man.

Why cannot coal operators do the same thing? Why should they be defended for working under an overhead which makes their prices too high? They should not be. The country, which depends upon coal for its industrial life, therefore has a right to demand that the operators bring about a reduction of prices.

The chief items in the present high cost of coal are high freight rates and high wages. Application has been made to the interstate commerce commission to reduce freight rates. High wages are demanded and obtained by the miners largely because fluctuations in demand reduce the number of their working days so low that their total annual income is hardly a living wage. Also, we now have some 12,000 mines in the country where before the war we had 6,500. Each of these mines is provided with men. We have nearly twice as many miners in the country as would be required to supply our coal needs working steadily month in and month out. Wages per ton of coal can be forced down and the annual income of miners maintained if worked 300 days a year, as farmers and printers, for instance, are expected to work. That would necessitate the excess miners going into some other line, but would relieve the consumer of the burden of paying for the upkeep of idle men.

This situation must be corrected. It can be corrected in part when the present wage agreements run out next April. It will not be entirely corrected until the seasonal evil in coal mining is reduced. That is a job for the operators, probably in conjunction with leading consumers of steam coal. The methods are for these men, not for the layman, to suggest. As long as the present waste of maintaining inferior mines, even though closed, of maintaining double the number of miners necessary to supply the country, and of gambling with the consumer as to whether he should buy his coal on contract or in the open market, is allowed, the coal business will be unstable and prices will be high, even though they represent a technical loss to producers. The consumer has a right to ask that these evils be corrected. He should show himself willing to help correct them by equalizing demand.

Freight rates are a contributing though a different evil. Their correction lies largely with the interstate commerce commission, but the fact remains that the roads are not fulfilling their duty even at the high rates. Last week there was a 9 per cent car shortage at our mines. If the roads would handle the business offered they might cut rates.

Editorial of the Dry*UNAGGRESSIVE JAPAN.

[The Dai Nippon.]

Why is it that the world's attention is focused upon Japan as if she were a perfidious nation harboring internationally dangerous designs? It is true to charge Japan with aggressiveness. But it bears the most emphatic statement that "there is in truth no instance in which Japan has ever attempted a territorial robbery." Neither in the Chino-Japanese nor in the Russo-Japanese war was it Japan that started the hostility. In each case Japan was far inferior to her enemy in armament and in each case she drew the sword only when she could do no other. In the war with China, the latter with her ironclad fleet laughed at Japan's miserable cruiser squadron. In the battle of Tsushima the Russian armada doubled Japan's in strength. How can it be anything else than malice to call Japan aggressive? True, Japan has annexed Formosa and a half of Baghailan, leased Kwantung province and come to the possession of Korea, directly or indirectly in consequence of the wars. It is decidedly wrong to call these acts of aggression; it was Japan's victory in the unequal wars that gave her those territories. The world knows that neither England nor France is to be deemed aggressive because one succeeded to the German possession in Africa, and the other recovered Alsace-Lorraine. And Japan's is not different from the cases of England and France. Facts are, however, somewhat different with America. The United States took the Philippines from Spain, and Texas, California, New Mexico, and Arizona from Mexico and robbed sovereignty of the innocent Hawaiians, not so much as the result as the cause of war. From this point of view, America may be called a peerlessly aggressive power, both in name and in fact. It is certainly not for Americans to call Japan aggressive, which she most decidedly is not. Japan does not hesitate to stand up and announce to the world that, apart from direct menace to her interests, she has absolutely no desire to acquire even a foot of foreign soil, as long as Japan is accorded equal treatment like any other people in the matter of immigration and access to raw materials.

A horrendous need of stabilizing foreign currency to assist some W. K. Wall Streeters who have been shopping in "paper" and have been terribly stung. 5. THE HIGH COST OF Y. M. C. A.
Evansville, Ill., Nov. 16.—It seems that there is one profiteer that the newspapers have not yet discovered—the Y. M. C. A. During the war the press did not seem afraid to criticize the Y., but now you hear nothing more about it, though it is profiteering more at present than it ever did during the war.

Out here in Evansville the charge for rooms in the dormitory is 100 per cent over what it was a few years ago and the service is very poor. The men are not allowed to live singly, but are crowded two in a small, narrow room with but one window. There is no one but the janitor to look after the cleaning of the dormitory, and often this is neglected. Washroom and lavatory facilities are inadequate. Instead of increasing the charges for gymnasium privileges, etc., where such charges do not now cover expenses, they boost the room rent on the young men going to school. Or why do they not cut expenses by discharging some of their useless employees and introducing a few modern business methods into the organization. If most of the people who contribute to the Y. knew of the way their money is wasted they would soon call a halt. STUDENTS.

ROUGH ON JANITORS—AND REAL ESTATE MEN.
Chicago, Nov. 16.—In answer to "C. R. T.'s" statement that a janitor of his acquaintance threatens damage when reminded of some of his duties, I would advise him to get a copy of the latest agreement between the janitors' union and the Real Estate board, and he will find the answer.

The quittance of this agreement is that the janitor will do the least possible for the greatest amount of money he can get from owner or agent. It is not said how many buildings he is allowed to take charge of. If he takes twelve or fourteen six flat buildings he neglects half of them the owner has no right to complain. The janitor, he is told by phone from the business agent's headquarters that he must keep that man or do the work himself.

A statement recently published in "The Chicago Tribune" shows that the janitors' union has on the payroll 100 officials, five stewards, six pickets, and seven automobiles. These gentlemen, whose only stock in trade is shoveling coal and emptying garbage pails, dictate on the 21st of December to a college trained real estate board what a janitor is allowed to do for the next year. And when their demands are not complied with there will be no fire in the boiler on Jan. 2, the milkman will deliver no milk, the sewers may be stuffed, and the regular urban workman will do no work on the "unfair" building.

This wonderful system, which is legal here, can only be maintained at considerable cost. But these coal shovellers from every corner of Europe know how to get away with it. The privilege to work as a janitor costs $100 fees and $8 dues a year. But some of them earn more than a college president. They get employ helpers, who are allowed to work only if they pay the same fees. Now they are being taxed $10 extra to defend indicted officials of their union. It all has to come out of the owners' and tenants' pockets.

When this is overcome there will be no jobless here. Money will be invested not in foreign bonds, but in industries, buildings and homes in Chicago. What do educated business men mean by allowing a lot of swill pail dictators to dictate to them?

STOP RECKLESS MAIL DRIVERS.
Chicago, Nov. 17.—Here's thanks to Mr. Ward Perry, president of the Illinois Automobile club, for taking up the matter with Postmaster Arthur C. Lunders to check reckless driving of mail trucks and compel the drivers to obey the ordinary rules of safety.

The writer is one of the innocent victims of avoidable accidents which are being caused almost daily by careless mail truck drivers. I have been laid up over three weeks and have been just a few inches away from being run over.

FIGHT PICTURES.
Chicago, Nov. 15.—Boxing in our fair city seems to be out of luck, but it seems all right to run pictures of boxing bouts just the same. It appears to me that if the pictures are all right boxing itself should be all right, but I suppose some of those busy bodies who are always looking out for our morals feel different, with the result that we are lucky to have the pictures.

I wish some of those reformers who are forcing our lovers of clean sport to go to Milwaukee, Aurora, and other places for boxing would go to see the Dempsey-Carpentier films. They would find that boxing isn't half as brutal as football or some of these other high brow sports. After I saw the pictures I sent my wife and son to see them, too, because I think they are red blooded enough to enjoy them, too. C. R. E.

THE COST OF COAL.
Joliet, Ill., Nov. 17.—Referring to W. L. Ballou's appeal in today's Vox Pop column, let me tell you what my friend, a coal dealer here, told me a few weeks since, when I suggested the price of coal. "Cost of coal at the mine, freight, unloading, and delivery with a fair profit for my company, together with our overhead charge of $1.75 per ton, makes up the price I have quoted to you."

Replying to my question as to the tonnage sold, he said 300,000 tons. I asked him if his knowledge of my work for many years would not warrant his belief that I was as capable of figuring

JUGO-SLAVS TAKE 157 TOWNS, OUST 40,000 PEOPLE

PARIS, Nov. 17.—[United Press.]—The Jugo-Slavs have captured 157 towns in Albania and put 40,000 residents to flight, H. A. L. Fisher, British delegate to the league of nations, told the league council today. The British consul at Durazzo has reported that the Jugo-Slav occupation was widespread, he said.

Resist Allied Interference.
PARIS, Nov. 17.—[By the Associated Press.]—Jugo-Slavia today pleaded not guilty to the charge of covenant breaking before the council of the league of nations, which is examining charges that the Jugo-Slavian troops have invaded Albanian territory contrary to the terms of the covenant of the league of nations.

This plea was entered after Herbert A. L. Fisher, member of the council for Great Britain, had produced evidence contained in Serbian newspapers that Jugo-Slavian troops were well inside the line of demarcation fixed by Gen. Franchet D'Esperey, which was to have stood until the Albanian frontiers had been definitely outlined by the allied authorities.

Reply by Slavs.
Mata Bockhovich, replying to the charges for Jugo-Slavia, not only contested the facts as reported but also questioned the application of the economic blockade to such a case. Jugo-Slavia, he said, was accused of not fulfilling her obligations, whereas the blockade could be applied only when one nation declared war upon another. If his country were guilty as charged, he added, the penalty should be exclusion from the league, but not the application of the economic blockade. The Jugo-Slav envoy questioned the condition under which the allied ambassadors had fixed the Albanian frontier and said this should have been done by a treaty negotiated in due form, whereas the Jugo-Slavs had not had an opportunity of negotiating such a treaty. Moreover, he said, the council of ambassadors was not representative of all the allied associated powers, but of the allies alone.

This contention, said the Jugo-Slavian spokesman, was in line with the attitude of the Greek government that

1.—In the course of the Serbian invasion of Albania 157 towns have been destroyed and 40,000 people rendered homeless, it is reported. Serbia has

2.—Terania, capital of Albania, is reported to be menaced by the Serbs.

3.—Montenegrin rebels have taken sides with Albania against Serbia and have seized and fortified Mount Lovcen at the Serbs' back, it is reported.

The United States must be represented in the settlement of frontiers as a result of the war.
Mr. Fisher announced that the Jugo-Slavs had accepted the decision of the council of ambassadors, whereupon M. Bockhovich explained that Premier Pachitch had announced that Jugo-Slavia would "conform to the decision of the ambassadors," while at the same time protesting against the absence of proper negotiations concerning the Albanian boundary. He said the armed conflicts which were the subject of British complaint, were provoked by the Albanians.
Madras Fraser, speaking for Albania, proposed that the council appoint a permanent frontier commission to watch over the new frontiers proposed for Albania and Jugo-Slavia. The hearing will be resumed tomorrow.

"AFTER 25 YEARS OF LAXATIVES"—

Cereal Meal for Breakfast Relieves Constipation.

One of the prominent Bankers of New York City has written the President of the American Health Food Corporation as follows:

New York, May 2, 1921.
Dear Sir:
I am extremely obliged to you for recommending Cereal Meal to me, as after twenty years of all sorts of Laxatives, this has done me more good than any of them.
Kindly send me half a dozen boxes so that I will have a supply for the summer. Cordially yours,
C. K.

Cereal Meal is the result of the scientific experiments of a prominent Physician with the idea of providing the intestinal tract with those activities totally lacking in the average food of today, and which is probably the chief cause of the national prevalence of Constipation—for more drugs are used with the mistake idea of curing it than all other ills combined.
Added to the most delicious and strengthening Grain and Wheat are food elements all purely vegetable, which do not detract from the appetizing

ing flavor of Cereal Meal, but stimulate the Lower Intestine, give just the lubrication it requires and set up the peristaltic action which is absolutely necessary for perfect evacuation every day.
Eaten daily, it absolutely insures one against Auto-intoxication and permanently relieves Constipation.
Though on the market but a short time, it is now being used in 4,800 homes in the State of Massachusetts alone.
Cereal Meal can be obtained at the better Grocers and Drugists—if not at yours, advise him that he can purchase it from a Chicago wholesaler of drugs or groceries, and in the meantime purchase a package from some other dealer or write direct to manufacturer, The Cereal Meal Corporation, Chambers at Main St., St. Louis, Mo.
The strongest of guarantees goes with each package, for, if you are not entirely pleased with Cereal Meal in every way, your dealer is authorized to return the full purchase price if you return the unused portion to him as unsatisfactory.

THE CEREAL MEAL CORPORATION, St. Louis, Mo.

ULSTER'S BEST FRIENDS BACK PEACE IN ERIN

Unionists Vote 2,000 to 70 to Support Parley.

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright, 1921, By The Chicago Tribune.]
LONDON, Nov. 17.—The Tory "die hards" went down to defeat this afternoon in Liverpool when Prime Minister Lloyd George received the full support of the Unionist or British Conservative party for his policy of making peace with Ireland. To the Unionists, Ulster looked for full support in its stand against a united Ireland.

Two of the hottest resolutions were withdrawn before the battle opened this morning, and only a motion by Col. Gretton was put forward. It condemned the long continued ascendancy of crime in Ireland and declared no settlement is acceptable which does not absolutely respect the position acquired by Ulster and provide every safeguard essential to imperial security and the protection of the loyalists in the south and west of Ireland.

Col. Gretton made a fiery speech in which he said the Sinn Feiners were murderers and not fit to be trusted, and Mr. Lloyd George was disgraced for shaking hands with loyalists' blood. Lord Farnham, a southern Irish peer, and Gen. Prescott Deane, a former Irish police officer, followed in the same strain.

Cites Costs of Civil War.

Lord Middleton, the leader of the southern Irish Unionists, replied. He declared it was all very true that there had been disorder in Ireland and that it was the fault of the successive British governments, but he asked what was the remedy.

He said force was useless and the Sinn Fein is three times as strong as it was before the armistice and it would take three times the force now in Ireland to subdue it.

Even if force was successful, he said, it would leave a legacy of hate to the present children and the children's children. Lord Middleton advocated the present method of settlement as the only way out of the bog.

Lloyd George Wins 2,000 to 70.

Sir Archibald Salvidge, chairman of the Liverpool Unionist association and the most influential Tory leader in England, moved an amendment expressing confidence in the government and trusting the empire's safety to their hands. He denounced the "die hards" as wreckers and declared he was sick of the continual attacks on the leaders and would press for a vote of confidence. The amendment was carried by an overwhelming majority by showing hands, not more than 70 out of the 2,000 voting against.

All through the meeting the "die hards" kept up continual cries of "traitors." This was particularly so when Sir L. Worthington Evans, minister of war, was speaking, although he reiterated his pledges that the government would make no settlement which would place Ireland outside of the empire, endanger imperial defense, or place Ulster gagged and bound under the Dublin parliament against its will.

Ulster Refuses Compromise.
Ulster's reply to Mr. Lloyd George's latest note was handed to Downing street this afternoon, but it will, not be considered until tomorrow, when the prime minister returns from Bournemouth. The Ulsterites are pressing for the publication of the whole correspondence, but Mr. Lloyd George insists on secrecy for the present.

Ulster, it is said, still refuses to enter the conference to which Worthington Evans declared it had been invited to discuss what conditions and what safeguards would secure its consent to enter an all Ireland parliament.

Sir James Craig and his associates, however, have intimated their willingness to hold informal discussions if it is clearly understood that they are not committed to anything. These conferences are not likely to take place before next week as Craig goes to France today to unveil a monument to the Ulster division at Thiepval on Saturday.

NEW CENTRAL AMERICA MONEY.

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras, Nov. 17.—The monetary unit of the Federation of Central American Republics has been fixed in a decree issued by the provisional federal council. The coin will be of gold and equivalent in value to an American half dollar. It will weigh 836 milligrams, have a fineness of 900, and be called "El Centro Americano."

TRUCK DRIVER IS BEATEN BY CROWD HE DRIVES INTO

Men and women last night severely beat the driver of a Parmelee Transfer company truck after he had driven into a crowd waiting for a street car at 63d and State streets, injuring a man and a girl and bruising several others.

Andrew Dahlen, 28 years old, 6151 Rhodes avenue, suffered a broken leg, cuts, and bruises, and Deloris Sculoch, 12 years old, 5533 South St. Lawrence avenue, was cut and bruised and possibly injured internally. One man seized the driver and forced him to stop. Others helped to drag him off the machine and beat him.

The driver finally broke away, jumped on the truck, and drove away at top speed. A short time later he ran the machine up in front of the Parmelee garage, 731 West Adams street, climbed down from the driver's seat, and disappeared.

Employees at the garage said the man's name was John Considine.

BANDITS AFTER STRONG BOX OF JOKE HOLDUP

Two armed robbers, their cupidry roused by published accounts of a 'plot to blind and rob Dr. Thomas H. Craven, 2226 Fremont street, of the contents of his strong box,' appeared at the doctor's door last night. One had his arm in a sling.

"Cut in a fight—want treatment," he explained.

Allowed to enter the vestibule, they drew revolvers. "We want that strong box," they growled.

Dr. Craven investigated the "plot" and pronounced it a joke. "Didn't you read about that?" he asked the bandits.

"Don't get funny or we'll shoot," they threatened.

"Sorry," said the doctor, and jumped back, slammed the door and fixed the burglar-proof chain.

The bandits tried for a moment to break the door in, then fled.

"No sense of humor," the doctor explained. "They couldn't see the joke."

ORIGIN AND RISE OF ART IN NEWS TOLD MEDILLANS

"Give Us a Picture," Cry of the Public.

What's the news? said Primitive man countless ages ago when he met his first Primitive Neighbor of a morning.

"Show me a picture!" said Primitive Man countless ages ago when he met an especially gifted Primitive Neighbor of a morning.

Out of that demand comes the illustrated newspaper of today.

THEODORE WESLEY KOCH.
(To the Medill School.)

BY EYE WITNESS.

Turning away from the craftsmen-ship of the men and women who write the newspapers the Medill School of Journalism of Northwestern University last evening took up the men and women who illustrate them.

The first process block to be used in the form of the expeditious half-ton it has so changed the aspect of the American newspaper that it has brought almost a revolution in journalism and in the taste and demands of newspaper readers.

They insist now upon having what Primitive man said he liked. They say "Show us a picture!" in the same breath with "What's the news?"

And so the newspaper picture has in twenty years become a tremendous news medium.

Editorials in Pictures.

It writes editorials, too.

McCutcheon smashes an intricate political or sociological or international theme in on you with a few strokes.

Twenty times a year he can come back at you with that theme, for the picture does not bore you. Of twenty editorials on one theme the man in the street might pass up eighteen. He says, "Show me a picture!"

"Thomas Nast began it," said Libran-Koch of Northwestern University, who is also Koch of the University of Pennsylvania, of Harvard, of the University of Paris, of the College of France, of the library of congress, and of the University of Michigan library.

If they planned all the degrees and diplomas on him he would be papered from top to toe.

"Nast began it," said the human architect. "He began the picture-editorial, or at least made it great, and a holy terror to designing men. He originated the Republican elephant and the Democratic donkey and the Tammany Tiger, and he made himself so obnoxious to certain statesmen of an extremely practical trend that they said,
'Wouldn't it be nice if you would take this present of $10,000 and go abroad to study for five years. It would be such a blessing to American Art.'

And Art Suffers.

Nast said that was kind, but couldn't they make it $25,000, and they said they thought they could. And then he suggested $50,000, and they said that would be all right, too, but they thought he ought to promise to stay abroad ten years and study very hard for $50,000, because it would be such a blessing to American Art.

"And he laughed and said maybe he would when the campaign was over."

"But by that time, unhappily for Art, it was too late, because several of the kind gentlemen were then on the way to prison."

Librarian Koch told the Medillans many another "first time ever" bit of lore about this school of pictorial journalism that has now grown so popular that today the young New York Daily News (mostly pictures) has more circulation than most of the other New York morning dailies combined.

Origin of "Cartoon."

He said the first time the word "cartoon" was ever used in its present sense of social or political satire in picture was when it was used by

Punch in Du Maurier's day. Punch took the word over from long-gone Raphael, with whom it had meant a rough sketch in ink. Before Punch gave the word its new significance what we now call a cartoon was called a caricature.

He said that when Du Maurier made a contract to syndicate his cartoons to an American paper Punch made an awful row about it, whereupon Du Maurier gravely replied, "But man cannot live by punch alone."

Another "first time ever" he told us about concerned the origin of the process picture as distinguished from work in oils—that is the old woodcut.

Its origin was both sporting and religious for the "first time ever" it was used as German playing cards and in German pictures of saints.

And so he pursued on, humanizing bookfuls of quaint lore and showing stereoscopic views of pictorial processes from the days of the glorious Florentine copper plates to the latest issue of news cuts made for the millions who cry "Show us a picture!"

Cry for Pictures.

He said it's the same way now—
sports and religion—religion and sports
—the Dempsey fight pictures brought 800 miles across country in seven hours and the scene of benediction over the Unknown Soldier's grave—both six columns wide, and not a minute to lose.
"Show us a picture!"

Workman Beaten Up by Quartet; One Man Nabbed

Philip Richards, who lives at the Y.
M. C. A. hotel, was attacked and beaten by four men last night at Polk and Clark streets as he was returning from work at the Continental Can company, 5411 West 58th street. He is a non-union machinist, police said. Victor Larson, 358 West 58th street, was arrested and charged with being one of the quartet.

This little bit of advice may help you to regain your Health, Strength and Vitality

Thousands of people suffer from nervousness.
They are run down and miserable without knowing the reason why.

They do not stop to think that much of their trouble may be caused by drinking tea and coffee which contain the drugs, thein and caffeine. When you over-stimulate the system for any period of time, the result may be nervousness with its many accompanying ills. You may fail to sleep properly and your sleep does not refresh you as it should.

Postum, made from scientifically roasted cereals, will help you to overcome all these conditions. For it contains only healthful substances, instead of drugs, as are found in tea and coffee.

Postum helps build sound nerve structure, by letting you get sound, restful sleep.

In flavor, Postum is much like high-grade coffee. In fact there are many people who prefer Postum for its savory flavor alone.

Order Postum from your grocer today. Serve this rich, fragrant beverage for the family. See how the children will like it, and how much better everybody will sleep at night.

Postum comes in two forms: Instant Postum (in tin) made instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water.
Postum Cereal (in packages of larger bulk, for those who prefer to make the drink while the meal is being prepared) made by boiling for 20 minutes.

Finest Laboratory Facilities

The Public Health Institute prides itself on its splendid laboratory.
Nothing is of more vital importance in dealing with venereal disease than a well equipped laboratory. The facilities of the laboratory are necessary, in the first place, to ascertain whether there actually exists veneral infection in a suspected case. Symptoms only are by no means sufficient for accurate diagnosis. The laboratory is also of vital aid in determining the treatment and ascertaining the results

To Employers:

You can help in the good work of the Public Health Institute and add to the efficiency of your own working force by letting your employees know the facts about venereal disease and the service of this Institute. We supply employers with placards for posting in proper places, also literature for distribution among employees.
Write for particulars.

Are you afflicted with a venereal disease?
If so, do not try to cure yourself. Avoid patent "remedies." They may ruin your whole health and life. No matter how poor you are, you need take no chances at all on getting the right treatment and right care in your affliction. You may come to the Public Health Institute, where you will receive the best of treatment and care at a small cost.

Effective Treatment—Acute or Chronic Cases

Daily the Public Health Institute is helping hundreds who are afflicted with venereal diseases. Some of these are young people who have but lately contracted disease; others are men and women of advanced ages (up to 60) whose trouble has been of years' standing.

Besides treating patients medically, the Institute also does valuable educational work on the prevention of venereal disease, which is of vital benefit to the community at large. Every physician, every clergyman, every welfare worker, every citizen who wants to be a good citizen should encourage the worthy mission of the Public Health Institute.

The public-spirited men who founded the Institute did so not for gain, but to make a fight on venereal disease in the interest of the public health and good. Their purpose was to place within the reach of everyone, no matter how poor, the very best of medical care, treatment and advice.

The cost of treatment is small—a fact made possible by the large number of patients handled. Any individual can readily pay without depriving himself of any necessities.

Privacy and Convenience

The Institute is completely equipped with the very latest scientific facilities for the treatment of venereal disease, including a splendid laboratory for the making of Wasserman and other tests. The Institute can handle 30 patients at a time, each in a private treatment room. This means no waiting in a crowded reception room, no delay in being treated. Privacy from the time you enter until you leave.

Every case receives the attention of competent physicians especially well trained in this work—men of heart and understanding, who really want to do something for the person who is venereally diseased.

The Institute occupies the entire 4th floor of the Reliance Building at 32 N. State St., southwest corner Washington. Centrally located in the heart of the loop, within easy transportation distance for everyone. Patients who work in the loop or close to it, can run up at noon for treatment. Those who work at a distance from the loop can come in the evening after work or on Saturday afternoons.

If you are afflicted with a venereal disease, lose no time in getting the proper treatment.
Not only for your own sake, but for those with whom you live. A visit to the Public Health Institute will do much to put your mind at rest.

TRUNK LINES ASK RIGHT TO SLASH LONG HAUL RATES

An attempt by transcontinental railroads to obtain permission from the interstate commerce commission to lower freight rates on more than 100 manufactured articles shipped from the Atlantic to the Pacific coast precipitated heated wrangling at the commission's hearing in the Great Northern hotel yesterday.

Backed by 192 associations of commerce of the middle west, representatives of coastwise steamship lines engaged vigorous protest to the proposed reduction. They charged that such action would not only give the Atlantic seaboard advantage over the middle west but that it would sound the death knell of the United States merchant marine.

Edward Chambers, vice president of the Atchafalaya, Topeka and Santa Fe railroad, told Examiner William Blaque the rate reduction was necessary to industrial progress. Railroads are now in the doldrums, he said, and the prospect of the abandonment of canal tolls was alarming.

The steamship lines attack the proposal on the ground that rates to intermediate points will not be lowered and hence the western manufacturer is discriminated against. Reference was made yesterday to statistics showing that 1,100 of the 1,400 merchant ships built in war times are now idle. If freight rates are reduced, the

"Among the commodities on which the roads ask rate reductions are: glassware, soap, tobacco, castiron pipe, structural iron, cotton goods, coffee, bottles, fruit jars, glue, lard, corn sirup, horseshoes, sewing machines, twine, cord, and wire goods, baking powder, rubber tires, tubes, and turpentine. Staple goods and raw materials are not included.

The hearing will be continued today. Decision will not be given for several weeks.

CHICAGO PLANS TWO BUSY DAYS FOR GEN. DIAZ

Generalissimo Armando Vittorio Diaz, the leader who took the Italian army after its disastrous defeat at Caporetto and modeled it into the fighting machine that routed the Austrians thereafter, will arrive in Chicago at 9 o'clock Sunday morning.

Chicagoans of Italian parentage have prepared a welcome for the foreign soldier along the lines of that when Marshal Foch was the city's guest.

Acting Royal Italian Consul G. Dall'Agnol, a committee of prominent Italians, and military and naval escorts under command of Gen. George Bell Jr. and Capt. D. W. Wurtzbaugh will greet the general's party at the Union station, conducting him to the Congress hotel, there to be welcomed officially by city and state officials.

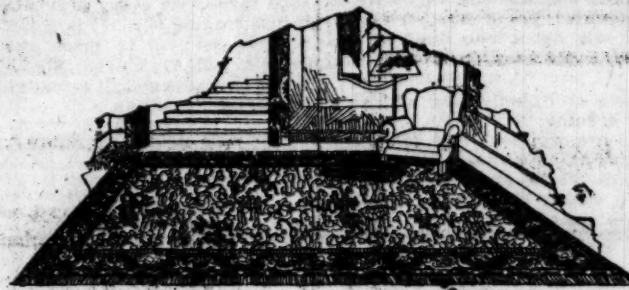

Holy mass will be held at the Holy Family Jesuit church at Roosevelt road and May street at 10:30 o'clock. Following the mass Gen. Diaz will visit Loyola university.

From a reviewing stand in Grant park Gen. Diaz will review the parade down Michigan avenue early in the afternoon. Behind platoons of police and firemen will march veterans of all allied armies of the war and units of the American army and navy.

Gen. Diaz will speak at a banquet in his honor at the Congress hotel at 7 o'clock. Prominent Italians and city officials will also make addresses. The Monday program consists of a

SHOOT STRAIGHT 'N' LOOK FIERCE, SAYS WOODFILL

New York, Nov. 17.—[Special.]—"Sergeant, were you ever scared?" This question was fired at Samuel Woodfill, whose record as a German exterminator won for him a chest full of medals and special commendation from Gen. Pershing.

"Well," he drawled hesitatingly, "I've never been what you might call scared helpless," but there have been times, and a good many of them, when I felt just a bit fidgety."

At this point the sergeant's friend and comrade in arms, Justice Philip McCook, beside whom he was sitting today on the bench in the Supreme court as a part of his "seeing New York" tour, interrupted to express Gen. Sheridan's opinion that "any man who said he was never scared was a damned liar."

Gen. Sheridan Right, He Says.

"I guess that's so," assented Woodfill.

"If you can keep your mind off what the other fellow may do to you by thinking what you're going to do to him," he added, "you'll come as near to keeping your knees stiff as any way I can think of."

"How do you account for the fact that one of those nineteen men you got in one morning didn't get you first? Were you bigger and stronger than all of them?"

"O, no. That was part luck and part skill. The luck was that they may not have happened to aim at me and the skill consisted of twenty years' training to shoot accurately. As for those two that I came to close quarters with—maybe my fighting face made 'em forget a little what they started out to do. That's a good trick

GLEN ELLYN GIRL AND A GIRL FRIEND DROP FROM SIGHT

The disappearance of Mildred Walter, 16, daughter of J. A. Walter of Glen Ellyn, and Josephine Snyder, 18, 6208 Ingleside avenue, is puzzling the police.

Nothing has been heard of the girls since they boarded a North-western train at Glen Ellyn last Saturday bound for Chicago.

It is reported that Miss Walter was jokingly told that she was to be named as co-respondent in a divorce suit. Glen Ellyn police denied the truth of this, but said that it may have been the cause of the girls' leaving home.

Knew War Was Coming.

"And, incidentally, I heard in Alaska, 'way back in 1906, all about the coming of the big war. I used to hunt with a former German officer who had been cashiered and turned prospector. He told me that America would be drawn in, but believed this country would be unable to send troops across."

Justice McCook, who was a major in Woodfill's regiment, is the latter's host during his week in this city, and has arranged an extensive program of entertainment.

BANK MESSENGER KIDNAPED IN LOOP AT BUSY CORNER

Risking long imprisonment, four bandits yesterday morning kidnaped a messenger of the Northern Trust company bank and obtained a sack of mail for which the bank offers a $50 reward.

The messenger is John Hebel, 3842 North Drake avenue. For two years he has called at the federal building at 6 o'clock each morning for the bank's unregistered mail. Yesterday morning was foggy.

As he reached Adams and Dearborn streets an automobile drew up alongside him. Three men leaped out and covered him with revolvers. A blanket was thrown over his head and he was bundled into the rear of the automobile. In Lincoln park he was released. He notified the police.

Death of Prisoner's
Father Wins Him Freedom

In order that he might attend the funeral of his father, who died two days ago, the sixty-day sentence given Arthur H. Valentine, 21-2153 Clybourn avenue, for stealing a mail truck, was remitted yesterday by Federal Judge George A. Carpenter.

LOVE FOR GIRL INSPIRED BOY TO SLAY PARENTS

Saginaw, Mich., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—Blinded by love for a young school teacher, Richard Champlain, 22 year old war veteran, shot and killed his father and mother and then set fire to their bedroom, because they objected to his infatuation, he confessed to Saginaw county authorities late tonight.

The boy confessed voluntarily in the presence of the school teacher—sweetheart, Miss Clara A. Humpert of Reese, Mich. Young Champlain had stubbornly denied responsibility for the murders of last Monday. Today the girl visited him in his cell and pleaded with him to tell the truth. Then he broke down.

Planned a Honeymoon.
"I did it. I shot them," he said. "I wanted to get rid of them and marry Clara. I was going to get an automobile. I figured on a wonderful honeymoon. You know, dad said I would be the heir to his $100,000 estate and I was anxious to get the money."

Champlain's attachment for Miss Humpert was a whirlwind affair of three weeks. He said his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Adrian Champlain, disputed with him over the girl. They objected to her religion.

"I told them she was a nice girl and I loved her," said Champlain in his confession tonight. "My folks told me to leave her alone. Well, I came home from Clara's house and the folks started quarreling with me again. I couldn't stand it. I went into the next room and got my revolver, shot them, and placed their bodies in the bed."

Set Fire to House.
"Then I went to Saginaw for some cigarettes and soon returned to the farm. To cover the crime I set fire to the house. That's all. I did it for Clara."

I was madly in love with her; I still am."

Man Jailed on Six Charges of Swindling Merchants
Charles Darling, 1828 Crossing street, was arrested yesterday on six charges of accepting money from merchants for advertisements to be shown on the screens of motion picture theaters. It is said none of these contracts has been carried out. He will be arraigned today in the Shakespeare avenue police court.

ICEMAN ROBBED OF $30.
Henry Demers, 3637 Federal street, Negro iceman, reported to the Stanton avenue police last night that he was robbed of $30 by an armed white man and a Negro yesterday.

OHIO SENATOR RAPS G. O. P. IN NEWBERRY CASE

Washington, D. C., Nov. 17.—The Democratic attack on the proposal to declare Truman H. Newberry the duly elected senator from Michigan in the contest launched by Henry Ford, his opponent in the 1918 election, was opened in the senate today by Senator Pomerene of Ohio, ranking Democrat on the privileges and elections committee.

In a four hour speech, the Ohio senator assailed Republican methods and Republican senators, declaring they planned to deny the Ford claims by political rather than judicial decision.

speech, giving way to other senators who wanted to discuss the anti-beer bill, which is to come up for a vote tomorrow. It is uncertain tonight when he would conclude his speech.

The Ohio senator at times called attention to the many empty seats on the Republican side, adding once that "I guess the Republican senators do not care to be told the truth."

"You would not have had to ask me or order me to come before the committee if I were contesting the case," Mr. Pomerene shouted. "I should have broken into that committee with a sledge hammer if I could have gotten in no other way."

Turning to the Republican side, he inquired why there had been no effort to tell what the defense of this "quasi senator" was against the charges filed. He also discussed the testimony of witnesses before the committee in an attempt to show that they had not told the whole story, and that the committee had reported the resolution to deny the Ford claims without gathering all the evidence available.

Stemware at Low Prices

A SET of 18 pieces—six Goblets, Sherberts and Grape Juice Glasses—in brilliant diamond optic amber glass, at $12—that is surely a low price.

Another Set of the same composition, in amber optic glass with dark blue stems and feet, is $13.50.

And another in daintily etched glass—sketches below—is $7.50.

These are only a few of our many values ready for Thanksgiving use.

For instance, there are many Goblets, Sherberts, Tumblers, and similar pieces in etched glass, priced at 15c, 25c, and 30c each.

Second Floor, Fifth Street.

THE snowiest of linen, the most graceful and gleaming of silver, the daintiest crystal and the finest china are none too rich to grace the board on Thanksgiving—the first feast of the holiday season. The Home Furnishing Sections are ready to help in any manner possible with selections of all that is finest in Table Ware.

Plated Silverware at Unusually Low Prices

SILVERWARE which may appear with perfect propriety at either the most informal or the most formal kind of Thanksgiving dinner, produces inimitable high lights in the ensemble of a table setting. It was made for us by a prominent manufacturer. The foundation of each piece is nickel, heavily silver plated and beautifully finished, which gives practically unlimited service, and aside from its attractiveness, the quality and the very low prices deserve strong emphasis.

Turkey Platter, $12 and $14

The size of this Platter, its shape, and simple lines make it a dignified setting for the most heralded part of the feast. The 18-inch size is $12, the 20-inch, $14.

Gravy Boat, $8.50

Of graceful design, harmonizing with Platter and Vegetable Dish. It rests on a silver tray, and the two are priced at $8.50.

Bread Tray, $3.75

The shining surfaces of this Bread Tray are plain until they reach the border, which is decorated with a dainty pierced pattern.

This Vegetable Dish is astonishingly versatile, for it may be either two dishes or one, as the occasion requires. If the Handle, which is interlocking, is taken off, the cover will serve as a separate receptacle and look as if it had no other role in life.

Pie Plate, $4

Such a Plate was invented for convenience as well as decoration, for it greatly improves the serving of Pie. It is footed and has an inset of Pyrex glass.

Sandwich Plate, $4.75

It may be used for cake instead of sandwiches, if you like. Stands on a substantial base and has a pierced border.

Fruit Bowl, $7.50

This Fruit Bowl is gracefully curved, and finished around its edge with the same type of pierced work used in the Bread Tray.

Covered Vegetable Dish, $10

This Vegetable Dish is astonishingly versatile, for it may be either two dishes or one, as the occasion requires. If the Handle, which is interlocking, is taken off, the cover will serve as a separate receptacle and look as if it had no other role in life.

First Floor, South, Wabash.

'PARTY' PREVENTS QUORUM IN CITY UTILITIES QUIZ

Only 7 Councilmen Show Up at Conference.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

Poker talk and "a party" were prominent yesterday in public utility business in Chicago.

So many aldermen attended "a party" yesterday afternoon that the local transportation committee was unable to get a quorum to discuss rapid transit. Only seven councilmen appeared to listen to those invited to discuss the subject.

For the benefit of the guests present, Chairman Schwartz announced that the absent aldermen were "busy on other committees and subcommittees." He added: "The purpose of the committee sessions is not to build loop subways, as is being represented, but to improve the whole transportation of the city."

• Labor Delegates Invited.

He wrote this same idea to E. N. Nickels, secretary of the Federation of Labor, and reiterated his belief in municipal ownership. The aldermen invited the Federation of Labor to appear before the committee by appropriate representatives and tell what they "think the immediate transportation needs of Chicago are."

The poker oratory came from Attorney Jacob Ringer, who, it was announced, "will speak for the city" in the investigation of telephone rates by the Illinois commerce commission.

"This baby," said Ringer, referring to the Illinois Bell Telephone company, "put in a few white chips thirty years ago and the public has been putting in the red and blue chips ever since."

Tells of Utilities' "Kitty."

"The company has been shuffling all these years," Ringer went on. "The Chicago company pays 4 1/2 per cent into the kitty yearly for the benefit of the American Telephone and Telegraph company. The kitty has been big enough to pay all expenses and the house has grown fat."

Ringer urged speedy action and the case was set for Dec. 15. The company filed several statements regarding income, expense, and value of property.

AMERICA SHORT 1,200,000 HOMES, EXPERTS REPORT

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 17.—There is a shortage of approximately 1,200,000 homes in the United States, but the outlook for building activities is good, according to members of the commission of the Associated General Contractors of America, who were here today. The commission is completing a tour of the country preparatory to making a report on building conditions to Secretary Hoover.

Building to cost approximately $15,000,000,000 have been held up because of the high cost of material and labor, the visitors said. Freight rates and the tight money market also were factors, they added. These factors, however, are being readjusted, the contractors explained, and an immediate betterment can be looked for.

EXPERTS MOVE TO PRY $51,926 FROM TREASURY

Lawyers to Ask Judge to Cancel Order.

An attempt will be made today by a number of special lawyers, experts, and other city employees to get $51,926 out of the city treasury. They will appear before Judge George Fred Rush to have the injunction dissolved which prevents payments to them.

This injunction was obtained last September by Ald. Schwartz, Guernsey, and Woodhull through their lawyers, Louis E. Hart and Lawrence A. Cohen. They had been investigating expert fees of $2,742,000 paid five building and real estate experts and decided that the city administration was attempting to pay out more money for experts and special attorneys in violation of the annual appropriation ordinance. The city administration appealed and the case is now pending in the Appellate court.

Denies Court's Jurisdiction.
"The Circuit court lost jurisdiction when the injunction was issued and the city appealed," said Attorney Hart last night. The lawyers and experts can obtain their money if they can convince the finance committee, and the city council that they were legally employed and have rendered the services for which they seek to collect. The injunction only prohibits the paying out of money from certain appropriations in violation of the appropriation ordinance, which says that the money can be "expended only under the direction of the city council."

The petition for the release of $51,926 is supported by an affidavit signed by Frederick G. Franks, secretary to Corporation Counsel Ettelson. He says that the persons, firms, and corporations who want the money released "have been employed upon necessary work of conducting certain public utility litigation before the Illinois commerce commission, Circuit court of Sangamon county, Illinois, and the United States Supreme court in the surface lines, elevated roads, and telephone cases."

These Want the Money.

Chester E. Cleveland wants the largest amount, $17,085. George B. Gillette, lawyer of Springfield, who has been an attorney for Gov. Small in connection with his indictment on a charge of embezzling public funds while connected with the state treasurer's office, seeks $9,375.

David H. Jackson, who is personal attorney for Mayor Thompson in certain libel suits, asks only $137. He is in the elevated road rate case also. George W. Jackson, engineer, wants $5,251. William H. Crumb, engineer in both surface line and telephone cases, has a bill for $10,200, and Daniel A. Roberts, a lawyer, asks $9,208. Ringer & Wilharts, lawyers, desire $5,767, and Ettelson, secretary, Frederick C. Franks, wants $300. It is not explained how Franks should be paid out of a fund for utility litigation.

The Central Court Reporting agency wants some money, but the affidavit gives it as a blank amount. O. W. Hunkle asks $20, and Glennon & Kern, $22, and the Severinghaus Printing company requests $645. Other smaller items are for stenographic services.

The Franks affidavit says that there is a fund of $200,000 from which the bills may be paid, if the court will cancel the injunction.

BANDITS POKE AS CLERKS.

Two bandits entered a United States store at 540 West Madison street early yesterday and forced the clerk, and then waited on several customers who entered. They then rifled the cash register of $17 and fled.

"How I made my discovery of a Better Bread"

Let Mrs. Thompson tell her own story.

"MY GROCER first suggested I try Schulze's new Butter-Krust Bread. I had previously not thought much about bread. Indeed, baker's bread to me had been merely bread—that's all.

"But I was amazed at the appetizing oven-baked fragrance of this new loaf. The crust was done to a nice golden-brown; the inside of the loaf was snowy-white and substantial.

"The taste was even more wonderful! It was entirely different from any bread I'd ever eaten. Its delightful milk-and-butter flavor gave me an enjoyment I had never before experienced in bread."

Schulze's new Butter-Krust has a characteristic, delightful taste you won't find in any other bread. We have developed the natural sugar in the wheat and preserved it with all its distinctive goodness for Butter-Krust.

Schulze's New Butter-Krust reflects the original fragrance and flavor gathered with the grain that's ripened in the sunshine of the great outdoors.

Your Grocer has Butter-Krust.

Schulze's Butter-Krust A Better Bread

We have given our pledge to the housewives of this community to see to it that Butter-Krust is the finest eating bread that can be baked. Loaves of Butter-Krust from every day's baking and every batch baked are personally cut, examined and every way tested by an Officer of this company.

A Danger Signal—Tender and Bleeding Gums

Healthy teeth cannot live in diseased tissue. Gums tainted with Pyorrhea are dangerously diseased. For not only the teeth are affected, but Pyorrhea germs seep into the body, lower its vitality and cause many ills.

Pyorrhea begins with tender and bleeding gums. Then the gums recede, the teeth decay, loosen and fall out, or must be extracted to rid the system of the poisonous germs that breed in pockets about them.

Four out of five people over forty have this disease. But you need not have it. Visit your dentist often for tooth and gum inspection. And keep Pyorrhea away by using Forhan's For the Gums.

Forhan's For the Gums will prevent Pyorrhea—or check its progress—if used in time and used consistently. Ordinary dentifrices cannot do this. Forhan's keeps the gums hard and healthy, the teeth white and clean. If you have tender or bleeding gums, start using it today.

Brush Your Teeth With Forhan's—How to Use It

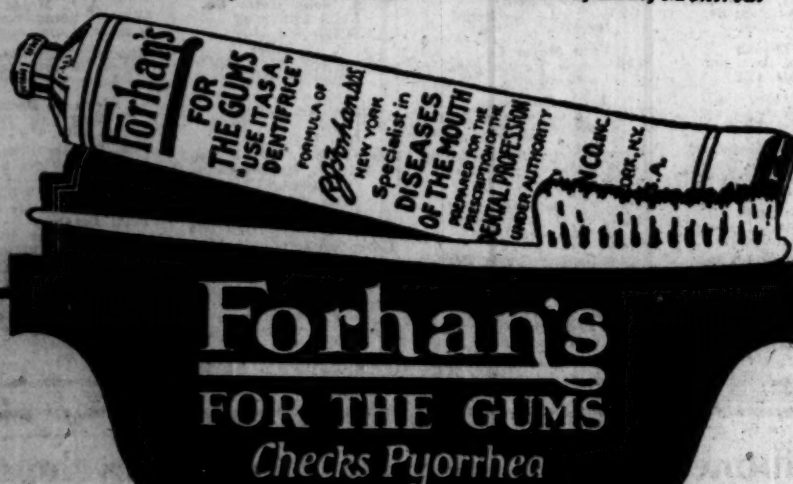

Use it twice daily, year in and year out. Wet your brush in cold water, place a half-inch of the refreshing, healing paste on it, then brush your teeth up and down. Use a rolling motion to clean the crevices. Brush the grinding and back surfaces of the teeth. Massage your gums with your Forhan-coated brush—gently at first until the gums harden, then more vigorously. If the gums are very tender, massage with the finger, instead of the brush. If gum shrinkage has already set in, use Forhan's according to directions, and consult a dentist immediately for special treatment.

BIG CONTRACTORS JOIN CITIZENS IN BUILDING CLEANUP

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Twenty building contractors who had maintained a "We're from Missouri" attitude toward the citizens' "cleanup" committee yesterday signed up the agreement to go along with the movement to enforce the Landis award. The contractors now signed up are estimated to do about 90 per cent of the building construction in Chicago in normal times.

Signs were noted by some of the experts of a stimulation of building. Contractors put in more calls for men. Union chiefs said the demand for workers in some trades was the greatest for any November in the last ten years and that in some lines more "permit" cards were being issued than ever.

Less than 10,000 idle.

Taking the industry as a whole, they estimated that of the 50,000 workers in the building trades in Chicago less than 10,000 are without jobs. The estimates of the percentage employed ranged between 80 and 90 per cent, which for November is an exceptionally strong showing.

An open winter, the union leaders declare, will keep things stirring with less than the usual amount of seasonal unemployment in the industry. This view is shared by some builders, although many of the large contractors declare that "thirty days will see the finish of most of the projects under construction."

So far the greatest activity is in the outskirts and the suburbs, where the building of cottages, bungalows, flats, and small stores and the remodeling of structures keeps up a gait that is still the talk of industry. Here it is the middle of November and in many cases foundations are still being started for new homes. Union chiefs declare Chicago is actually experiencing a building boom, but "does not recognize it."

The "cleanup" committee yesterday reported an abundance of applicants for carpenter jobs on the "open shop" basis in that craft at the rate of $1 an hour. About 1,300 outsiders are now at work, while more than 150 are on the list of applicants.

Warning Given Violators.

It was reported unofficially that both contractors and workers in trades that are violating the terms of the Landis award, such as the plumbers and roofers, have been given informal notice by the "cleanup" committee that they will be given a certain period in which to ponder the question of following the award or facing an "open shop" movement in such crafts. The carpenters' unions from the outset refused to be a party to the arbitration.

All groups—contractors, workers, architects, owners, material men, and money lenders—are to be given equal treatment, the committee says, in the move to enforce the award.

DAILEY SCORES DELAY

An investigation to fix responsibility for tardiness of prosecution of building graft and material combine cases in the county and federal courts will be launched by the executive committee of the Illinois building investigation, according to an announcement yesterday by Senator John Dailey, chairman of the commission.

"We have not decided just what the procedure will be in this investigation," said Senator Dailey. "We are not blaming any particular person. We may be given assurance within the next week or so that these cases will be speeded up."

"Delay can only help the defense and hurt the people's case. Unless there is prosecution of these cases the money which has been spent by the state in this entire inquiry will have been wasted."

Earlier in the day Senator Dailey in an address before the American Civic association and the National Municipal league at the University of Chicago declared that the present Chicago building code was drawn largely at the suggestion of "special interests" and is obsolete. The present code, he said, entails an extra expenditure of $500 in building a $5,000 home.

John Hilder of Washington, head of the civic development department of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, told the association that unless steps are taken to improve the cheap types of buildings being erected many of the cities will find new slum areas within their limits within the next few years.

J. Horace McFarland, president of the American Civic association, compared city zoning to "good municipal housekeeping" and held it up as one of the greatest protections to the home investor.

8 Jurors Chosen in Trial of Doctor on Fraud Charge

Eight jurors were chosen yesterday for the trial of Dr. Stanley D. Francis, 337 West Madison street, on charges of obtaining money by false pretenses in connection with "cures" prescribed by him.

U.S. Now Can Pay Damages Caused by Mail Truck

Thrift means a higher standard of living without added expense, the dignity of serving oneself, and domestic independence.

"The Average Citizen Rails and Roars"

THRIFT today is the popular watchword of the nation. Proficiency in government expenditures is now unspeakable. The average citizen rails at Congress and roars at taxes. He demands efficiency but applies its need to every one but himself.

The home economies brought about by the war too often meant merely patriotic endeavor, and not a suddenly awakened realization of self-inefficiency. That is proved by the fate of many of Science's most useful productions that daily appear to aid human progress and to increase happiness in the home. Science, however, is not a salesman, and it is hard to convince the public that anything sold, aside from food and clothing, is not a luxury. Yet the real Thrift of today is not only the hoarding of pennies but also the use of Science's aids.

Some shrewd philosopher has said that the wage earners of today can, through Science's benevolence, live in greater comfort and safety than the monarchs of the last century. And some do, but others cannot believe what is before their eyes. What king of those comparatively recent days knew the delights of a toaster on his royal breakfast table? What queen with a passion for cleanliness in her palace dreamed of the efficiency soon to appear in the vacuum sweeper?

Health makes wealth, they say, and on this basis Science, as represented by Electricity, certainly makes both. Most women know—and some men—that the world's greatest hardships that come from over-work fall upon the mother in the average household. Too many of these indispensable wage-saving mothers are still using the steaming washtub and the blistering sad-iron, though Science has produced, in the interests of Thrift and Efficiency, the toil-free washing machine and the electric iron.

When you think it over you realize that usually it is the woman of the household who has to practice all the Thrift after preaching it to deaf masculine ears. Yet selling Thrift to America's women is not "carrying coals to Newcastle". The moment a woman realizes that the purchase of an electrical washing or ironing machine, electric iron, or vacuum cleaner is lengthening her days, her inherent thriftiness and her love of home will melt into the big idea.

Then will Science have acquired its greatest salesman—who will be a woman—one who will enter the homes of the workers even more easily than those of the employers.

PLAN SUGGESTED TO DECIDE BIG 10 GRIDIRON HONORS

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.

When football coaches and athletic directors of western conference universities gather in Chicago Dec. 3 to arrange schedules for the 1922 gridiron season, efforts should be made to arrange the slates in such a manner that an undisputed champion can be determined.

Conference rules prohibit postseason games to determine a logical champion. It also is contrary to the spirit of the association to award championships to a victor.

But with such interest being taken in football claims and counter claims of contending eleven and their supporters, some sort of action should be taken so that the two strongest eleven may meet at the close of the season.

Michigan Alumni Offers Scheme.

Edward H. Lauer, an alumnus of Michigan, has offered a proposition which is worthy of the consideration of those in charge of football at the conference institutions. Lauer suggests that the last playing Saturday, the one before Thanksgiving day, be left open. A meeting of all coaches can be held a week in advance of this date to arrange slates between teams entitled to the highest ranking in the association.

One can easily see how satisfactory such a scheme would be this season, with Iowa and Ohio tied for honors. Supporters of both institutions are laying claims to the championship, but if Lauer's scheme were in effect the championship struggle would be decided in either Columbus or Iowa City tomorrow.

The Contenders Show Early.

Championship contenders generally assert themselves about the middle of November. Strength of most of the teams is known to a degree of certainty on the last Saturday in October, and it has generally happened that only two eleven have had any claims to the championship. Schedules of the best eleven are so arranged that the supposedly stronger teams are met late in the season.

The suggestion of the Michigan alumnus would in no way prevent the scheduling of the usual number of games. Six contests could be arranged at the Dec. 3 meeting and a seventh struggle determined at the meeting of football coaches of their representatives on the second Saturday before Thanksgiving day to determine the eleven which will struggle for not only the title but for places in the final rating.

Something Should Be Done.

"Something should be done to give the best teams an opportunity to fight out for the championship," Lauer said in a letter addressed to the writer. "A scheme could easily be worked out whereby the leading eleven will be pitted against each other at the close of the year. Such a contest would be a fitting climax to a great season such as we have experienced in recent years."

"I am a loyal rooter for my good team and want to see the best eleven win. I am sure there are thousands who feel the same as I do about it. In this regard, I think the public should be taken into consideration. A championship struggle always attracts public interest and every one likes to have a championship determined."

The suggestion, however, must meet with active opposition. Cardinal eleven in the conference will not play others regardless of the rule, which suggests each Big Ten eleven play at least four contests with other members of the association and rotate in such a manner that in the course of every few years all are met.

ACID TEST FOR STALEYS SUNDAY

The Staleys' forwards, who have yet to meet their match this season, will have an acid test in the Cleveland game at the Cuyahoga Park Sunday afternoon. They will be called upon to meet one of the most versatile attack in football—the runs and plunges of the famous trio of Indians—Jim Thorpe of Carlisle, Guyon of Georgia Tech, and Calao of West Virginia.

Cleveland's line is fast and powerful. Four of the men are veterans from the Canton eleven and went with Thorpe to Cleveland. Tom Whelan and Corcoran, the ends, are both ex-Georgians men. O'Connor, a tackle, is from the same variety, and the other tackle, Lowe, from Fordham.

The game is the last of the season and the Staleys' forwards, who have yet to meet their match this season, will have an acid test in the Cleveland game at the Cuyahoga Park Sunday afternoon. They will be called upon to meet one of the most versatile attack in football—the runs and plunges of the famous trio of Indians—Jim Thorpe of Carlisle, Guyon of Georgia Tech, and Calao of West Virginia.

MAROONS SCRIMMAGE AGAINST BADGER PLAY

BY ALBON HOLDEN.

Two hours of dummy scrimmage without tackling against Wisconsin forward pass plays was the program for the University of Chicago team in preparation for the final game of the season with the Badgers on Stagg field tomorrow.

That the Maroons are worried by the Cardinals' screen pass in which the entire line goes down the field to clip the secondaries, clearing the decks for the pass, is no secret. Against Michigan Richard's team completed ten passes for nearly 100 yards of ground, but could not score by the air route.

Cole to Start at Half Back.

Cole was working regularly in the signal drill, and unless the field is slippery tomorrow it is likely that he will start at half back, with either Hurlburt or Pyott at the other half. With Hermes now in shape Coach Stagg has four good full backs available. Timme, Thomas, Zorn, and Hermes are a great quartet of driving full backs, and may all be in the game.

For at least nine Maroons tomorrow's battle will be their final Big Ten gridiron appearance. Capt. McGuire, Redmon, Miller, Hermes, Neff, Cole, Tatge, Chrysler, and Halladay are playing their third season. Capt. Sundt, Elliott, Gould, Bunge, and Brader of Wisconsin also are seniors who will end their football careers.

Cardinals Short of Duets.

The Daily Cardinal, the student paper at Madison, attacked the Chicago athletic department in an editorial Wednesday because the ticket supply for Wisconsin students ran 1,000 short of the demand at Madison.

Miss O'Connell, in charge of ticket distribution on the Midway, explained the shortage. "Wisconsin asked for 10,000 tickets, the largest allotment ever requested by a visiting university for a game on Stagg field, and we supplied their request."

"After the tickets were out of our hands the manner in which they were distributed was no concern of ours. If 1,000 students at Madison cannot see the game, we are sorry, but that only means that Wisconsin alumni got the tickets instead of students."

Cardinals Working Hard for Green Bay Packers

Muddy fields have not stopped practice for the Chicago Cardinals, who meet the Green Bay Packers Sunday afternoon at Normal park. The Cardinals took a workout last night and after the practice Manager Chris O'Brien pronounced his eleven fit. The Packers have the distinction of being the only team in professional football that has scored two touchdowns in the first quarter. They turned that trick against Hammond last Sunday.

George Sawtelle, for the last two years baseball and wrestling coach and assistant football coach at Northwestern university, will leave the university in a few days to go into business in Texas.

BELOIT GRID CAPTAIN BARRED FOR PRO GAME

BELOIT, Wis., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—Because he participated in a semi-pro game, "Jim" McCarthy, captain of the Beloit college eleven, has been declared ineligible. McCarthy was charged with having played with the Fairbanks-Morse team at Elgin. He entered no denial. The ruling lessened Beloit's chances to beat Ripon here Saturday.

CHANGE IN RULE ON AMATEURS IS MADE BY A. A. F.

Officials of the Amateur Athletic federation have passed favorably upon a new rule reversing the outlook of that body on amateurism in local sports and changing the policy of the controlling body. The new rule is: "An athlete who professionalizes himself in any sport becomes a professional in that sport only, remaining an amateur in all other sports."

President A. F. Hammesfahr of the federation explained that the rule goes even farther, and means "that an athlete will be considered an amateur in any sport until he definitely professionalizes himself in that particular branch of athletics. This rule will apply to all federation championship events."

GOPHER COACH LAUDS PLAYING OF A. DEVINE

Coach Dr. Harry Williams, the Gopher assistant coaches, and the team were guests of the Chicago Alumni club of the University of Minnesota at the Morrison hotel yesterday, after which the squad practiced on the White Sox field. J. Paul Goode of the University of Chicago presided at the luncheon.

Williams declared that though odds were against the Gophers in tomorrow's game against the Michigan (Minnesota Coach) at Ann Arbor, the team had a good fighting chance and had often pulled out victoriously when things looked blacker.

Praises Aubrey Devine.

Williams interested the guests by his estimates of other conference teams. He said the Wisconsin backfield was one of the greatest he had seen.

"Aubrey Devine, the Iowa captain, is one of the most unusual men who ever played football," said the veteran coach. "In Iowa's game at Minneapolis, he and Locke, the Iowa full-back, were the only men who carried the ball. Devine could take the ball, and advance it six or seven straight times, picking or making his holes, or going around the ends, and come right up for the next play as unwearyed and as hard to stop as ever. He deserves any honor that football can heap on him, as a player."

Little Brown Jug to Winner.

The Minnesota team will be guests of the Michigan eleven at dinner in Ann Arbor Saturday, following the game, at which time the historic "Little Brown Jug," most famous football trophy in the west, will be given officially into the hands of the winning eleven. The jug now is in the Michigan trophy case, as the result of the Wolverines' victory at Minneapolis last season.

Supremes to Have Heavy Line in Hammond Clash

A forward wall that averages 203 pounds to the man will start for the Morris Supremes against Hammond, in the opening professional game of the year at White Sox park Sunday afternoon. The Supremes, the newest aggregation to bid prominently for the attention of Chicago football fans, are coached by Hutch Scanlon, the ex-Pur due mentor, and will take their final workout for the melee against Hammond's huskies on Saturday afternoon.

Delaporte has been in communication with Springfield (Mass.) High, and it seems probable that the champion eleven of this city may be sent there for a game.

At a meeting of the Suburban league board Waukegan (Ill.) High school was admitted to the league, and will open its activities in the circuit with basketball. The date set for Waukegan's entrance into the league is Dec. 1.

FOOTBALL CAMPS

WISCONSIN.

MADISON, Wis., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—The Badgers wound up work for the Chicago game by running through signals and dummy scrimmaging against the All-Americans. The field was slippery from an all day drizzle and the team didn't work well. Coach Richards has been contending with the possibilities of the squad going stale, but seems to have come through all right.

The squad leaves for Chicago at 7:30 o'clock tomorrow morning, arriving in time to work out on Stagg field in the afternoon. The Frosh squad will be rewarded with its annual football trip, and sufficient money has been raised to send the All-American team. Wisconsin students are still unable to obtain sufficient seats and many who had planned to go will be left behind.

HARVARD.

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—Harvard had a mean day for its final work-out on Soldiers' field, a drizzling rain preventing the eleven from speeding up its plays for the last time before going into action against Yale. The drill included a polishing up of offensive football. The backs did a lot of kicking and had more practice handling the wet ball. Also the drop kickers had a long session. Harvard is relying on forward passes to score touchdowns.

MICHIGAN.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—Following the announcement that Capt. Dunne and Fisher would be unable to play against the Gophers, more gloom was cast over the Michigan camp today when it was learned that the following players were out: Walter Bank would play. These men have not fully recovered from injuries, and in case Coach Yost finds they are not in condition Curran or Dean will start at end and Uteritz will call the signals.

ILLINOIS.

Urbana, Ill., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—After their final workout on Illinois field, Bob Zupke embodied his Illinois team tonight. Illinois will line up against Wilcox's team exactly the same as against Chicago. The following players went to Ohio: Walquist, Sabo, Glander, Mohr, Vogel, Greene, Drayer, Wilson, Sternaman, Froben, Crangle, Dawson, Anderson, Bauer, Bodman, Esslinger, Graham, Kaiser, MacMillan, Muller, Teuscher, Taber, Woodard, Gamble, Yates, Augur.

NOTRE DAME.

Notre Dame, Ind., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—No scrimmage was held on the last afternoon of practice preceding the Marquette game and Coach Rucke played safe by walking his varsity through dummy formations in which the freshmen used Marquette plays. The squad is in good trim and the strongest lineup which Coach Rucke can muster will be thrown against Marquette. A squad of thirty-five men will leave Friday morning for Milwaukee.

OHIO STATE.

Columbus, O., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—Ohio State tonight spent a muddy session in scrimmaging. A crowd of 1,000 fans gathered to watch the practice. The team was in a little of the practice. Stunt also was used only a bit in the scrimmage, but took part in the forward pass practice. The Ohioans sent the Illinois aerial offense and the major part of the scrimmage was devoted to rehearsing the forward pass defense to be used against Illinois.

IOWA.

Iowa City, Ia., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—On a muddy field the Hawkeyes tonight took their last real practice of 1921. The eleven was never in better shape and the team expects to defeat Northwestern decisively at Evanston Saturday. A light practice will be held Friday afternoon before the team leaves for Chicago.

PURPLE TEAM IN FINAL PRACTICE FOR IOWA GAME

Calling off scrimmage, Coach McDewitt ran his Purple gridiron squad through the final long practice yesterday afternoon in preparation for tomorrow's battle with Iowa. A shoes signal drill will be held today. Headed by the Purple band and under the leadership of Al Steele, cheerleader, several hundred students will gather at Patten gymnasium this afternoon at 6 o'clock and march to the athletic field. Coach McDewitt has declared an open practice and the students plan to file on the field, yell for the team, sing "Go U Northwestern," and then retire to the grandstands to watch the final workout.

A better spirit was evident among the players in their practice yesterday. The words spoken by Purple alumni at the banquet given in honor of the team Wednesday night seemed to have stuck in the heads of the members of the squad, and discussion was on winning and not merely holding down the score. The plays were run off with a snap and precision which bode a fight for the Hawkeyes.

"Prep" Football Player Dies After an Injury

Pittsburgh, Pa., Nov. 17.—Munroe [Bud] Beatty, Bellevue High school football player, died yesterday of injuries received in a recent game with the Avalon High school team. Hospital physicians said death was caused by a clot pressure on the spine.

ON CITY'S DOUBT L

Expert Refused
O. K. on Bid

BY O. A. M.

For the first time in the history of Chicago, an issue of the city's municipal bonds, which was issued in February, 1921, to meet the debt incurred in the construction of the new city hall, was not sold. The bonds were offered at a price of $100 per $100 of face value, but no one was willing to buy them. The bonds were therefore returned to the city.

Question of Legitimacy
The reason for the failure of the bonds to be sold is a question of their legitimacy. This question was raised in the single bond sale, the bid being for the obtaining of a $100,000 bond by either Wood & Oakley, or former Judge of New York. The bonds were not sold, but the city must pay for them. The firm of Wood & Oakley has been retained by the city and the banks to handle the sale of the bonds. The city is already giving a favorable opinion of the sale of the bonds, but the question of the legitimacy of the bonds is still a matter of controversy.

Eastern Syndicate
The single bid received by the city was for $100,000 of bonds, but the syndicate, headed by Trust company of New York, members being Ames, Stacy & Braun, E. H. R. L. Day & Co., Eastern Bankers' Trust company, Bollin & Lee, Halsey and A. G. Becker & Co., Harding did not want to buy the bonds, but took the advertisement. Inasmuch as Wood & Oakley, the present sale of the bonds is on the opinion of the New York expert. The syndicate in the city's money to meet last year's having been withdrawn. Unless the city is willing to pay for the bonds, it will be a quagmire as to making them from the tract.

Oakley Explains
Horace Oakley of the last night explained to his firm declined to give the city a favorable opinion of the sale of the bonds. "It seemed to us," he said, "that the general corporate bond is proposing to issue an important legal question, settled by the adjournment of the Illinois Supreme court. Unless the bonds were sold, we were unwilling to buy them until such an action had been had."

The purpose for which the bonds are issued is to pay for the construction of the new city hall. The law under which the bonds are issued is a law passed in 1917, which provides for the sale of the bonds in the event of a default in the payment of the interest on the bonds. The law is a very old one, and it is a question of whether or not it is still valid.

Posterity Gets Nerve
Bonds are usually issued for the purpose of paying the interest on the bonds. The improvement in the city's financial condition is a result of the sale of the bonds. The city is now in a position to pay the interest on the bonds, and the city is now in a position to pay the principal of the bonds. The city is now in a position to pay the interest on the bonds, and the city is now in a position to pay the principal of the bonds.

ONLY ONE BIDDER ON CITY'S BONDS; DOUBT LEGALITY

Expert Refuses to Put His O. K. on Big Issue.

BY O. A. MATHER.

For the first time in the city's corporate history Chicago banks yesterday unanimously refused to make a bid for an issue of the city's bonds. The particular issue was $3,000,000 general corporate bonds, which were approved at the election in February and were designed to meet the deficit in the city's revenues incurred in 1920.

The bonds were advertised for sale through two weeks ago by George F. Harding, city controller, and the time for submitting bids expired at 11 o'clock yesterday morning. Then it became known that not a single bid had been received from any of the Chicago banks, which usually are keen bidders for Chicago bonds. One bid of $7,886,180 was received. This is 98.57 cents on the dollar. The bonds bear 5 per cent interest.

Question of Legality Raised.

The reason for the refusal of the big banks to bid for this issue of bonds is that a question has been raised as to their legality. This question also is raised in the single bid submitted yesterday, the bid being contingent on the obtaining of a favorable opinion by either Wood & Oakley, Chicago experts, or former Judge John C. Thompson of New York. This opinion must be obtained within ten days and the city must pay for it.

Eastern Syndicate Bids.

The single bid received was from a syndicate headed by the Guaranty Trust company of New York, which includes members being Ames, Emery & Co., Stacy & Braun, E. H. Rollins & Sons, R. L. Day & Co., Estabrook & Co., the Bankers' Trust company, Hamman, Bellin & Lee, Halsey, Stuart & Co., and A. Becker & Co. City Controller Harding did not award the bonds on this bid, but took the matter under advisement.

Oakley Explains Firm's Stand.

Horace Oakley of Wood & Oakley last night explained the reasons why his firm declined to give the banks and the city a favorable opinion on this particular bond issue.

"It seemed to me that the $3,000,000 general corporate bonds which the city is proposing to issue presented several important legal questions that should be settled by the adjudication of the United States Supreme court before the bonds were sold," he said. "Accordingly we were unwilling to approve them until such an adjudication had been had."

"The purpose for which the bonds are issued is to pay obligations that are incurred in excess of current revenue. The law under which municipal corporations operate in this state permits taxes to be levied, not in excess of a certain fixed rate, to pay current municipal expenses. These taxes are usually called millage taxes. It is the general opinion that the fund thus can be raised by taxation for millage purposes."

Feasibility Gets No Benefit.

"Bonds are usually issued for the purpose of paying the cost of permanent improvements, in the benefit of which posterity will share. It is therefore proper that posterity should carry its share of the tax burden. But obviously this is not the case with current millage taxes."

"The constitution of Illinois provides that a municipality shall, at or before the time of incurring any indebtedness, provide for the collection of a direct annual tax to pay it. Any obligation incurred without such tax provision is under the ban of the constitution, and any current obligations which are to be paid out of taxes, but which have been incurred in excess of the current tax revenue, would seem to be of this class of outlaw obligation. If the debt could not be incurred it obviously cannot be funded."

"If a municipality, which has a fixed tax rate, is free to incur obligations in excess of the tax rate (together with the income from other sources) the tax limitation is nullified. For the fifty years that the present constitution has

Miss Suratt on the Wages of Sin

BY SHEPPARD BUTLER.

ANGINGS of vivid blue stretch ceilingward from the stars of the majestic this week as Miss Vaieska Suratt, robed in silver, intones purple passages concerning life in our large cities. It is a colorful time, both pictorially and emotionally, and if you are not stirred you probably will agree that it is your own fault.

In "The White Way," one of Mr. Jack Laite's moral plays about sin, Miss Suratt is assigned the task of saving a country maid from the clutches of a divorced husband, who is no better than he should be, though good looking. The rescue is effected through moral suasion and slow music, and, the pretty yokel being reluctant, it takes a bit of talk.

Thus you hear that "there are game laws to protect all animals except aphorisms just as morbid. The play is new and contains many words, and will be better when Mr. Laite removes some of them."

Other Items of the Majestic's bill are:

"Pinky"—Song and dance diversion by a pint size hooper and a girl.

Lowe, Feeley, and Stella—More of the same, with two girls this time. Lively and amiable, but a trifle Chauvin.

Fluke Harris—With his Seven Synonyms in painstaking elucidation of negroid melodies. Mr. Harris sings and plays all the instruments, winding up with amusing exercises on the bull fiddle.

Jimmy Lucas—One of those "nut" comedians who just talks and talks. A picturesque young woman named Francine helps now and then.

Toto—The famous clown, in extravagant pantomime of the old school, some of it droll effective and some of it overdone.

Old Olsen and Chic Johnson—Singing and simulating insanity. Whether you like this sort of thing or not depends on your state of mind.

Eddie Ross—A veteran of the burnt cork era, telling funny stories and strutting gay tunes on his banjo. Not many entertainers know their business better than he.

Fluke's Mules—Vaudeville's equine joy fest."

"Take it from me," a tuneless entertainment more or less familiar in these parts, is scheduled to follow Eddie Cantor and "Midnight Rounders" at the Great Northern a week from next Sunday. It had a long run at the Studebaker in 1919, and was liked well enough, its sponsors think, to justify a return engagement.

been in force all of the municipalities of the state have been upon a pay as you go policy.

"So carefully created and guarded a policy should not, it seemed to me, be abandoned until the various constitutional and statutory aspects of the change had been fully considered and approved by the Supreme court. It is impossible to depart from this pay as you go policy without opening the gates for limitless and uncontrollable expenditures of public money."

Severe Blow to Harding.

The single bid received yesterday, being below par, came as a disappointment to Controller Harding, who previously had announced he expected several bids from eastern syndicates that would run at a premium.

The question of legality of the issue, as well as the failure of Chicago banks to bid, resulted in the low price of the bonds. The bonds were divided into $2,850,000 general improvements, due 1926 to 1929, and $1,150,000 water bonds, due 1940 to 1943.

The syndicates included several of the bond houses which were also members of the syndicate which put in the only bid for the Chicago bonds.

A fire for which 2-11 alarm was turned in attacked and for a time threatened to destroy a three story brick building occupied by factories, at Racine avenue and Van Buren street last night. The damage is estimated at $10,000.

REVEAL $300,000 "SHRINKAGE" IN GROSSCUP FUNDS

Will Dispose of $500,000;
Inventory $200,000.

An apparent shrinkage of $300,000 in the estate of the late Peter S. Grosscup, former judge of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, was revealed yesterday in the Probate court.

Evidence submitted there to Paul Corke, assistant to the Probate Judge, indicated that the Grosscup estate was worth only $200,000. On the other hand, the Grosscup will, recently filed for probate, made bequests totaling approximately $500,000, one bequest of $400,000 being made to the judge's adopted daughter, Mrs. Katherine Grosscup Moon.

Make Fruitless Search.

Since Judge Grosscup's death on board the steamship Caronia Oct. 1 Attorney William Garnett has made a thorough search for assets of the estate. Investigation of all records left by the judge, safety deposit vaults, and a perusal of papers in the Grosscup homes in California and Ohio have disclosed no assets except those filed in the inventory yesterday, which totaled $200,000.

When the will was filed for probate Mrs. Moon said that she believed another will had been made by her foster father shortly before his death.

Neither Mrs. Moon nor other relatives were able to explain to the court what has become of the missing $300,000, which is said to have consisted of utility stocks and bonds.

To Search Baggage.

Attorney Garnett suggested to the court the possibility that the missing securities may have been in the baggage of the judge when he died at sea on his way to Europe. The judge was under the care of a physician.

Under the rules of the steamship company the judge's effects were returned to Liverpool when the Caronia returned to its home port.

Through the British consulate, steps have been taken to file the necessary papers in English court to release the effects of the judge, Attorney Garnett told the court.

The court here was asked yesterday to appoint Mrs. Moon and Benjamin Grosscup Jr. executors of the estate.

North Shore Women to Aid Jewish Fund Drive

Women of the north shore will have their own division in the drive of the Chicago Jewish relief committee for war sufferers.

Mrs. Joseph Fish, chairman of the women's division of the Chicago committee, has called a meeting to be held at the home of Mrs. J. L. Lichtenstein in Glenview, Monday, Nov. 28, at 2 p. m. Captain Fish will be appointed and the work of north shore women organized.

BEG YOUR PARDON

THE TRIBUNE finds that a report published concerning a fine of $25 levied by Judge Bernard P. Barassa in the Rent court upon Attorney Benjamin E. Cohen, 139 North Clark street, was not based upon fact. Attorney Cohen was not fined. He was not even in court. The report he was given from City News bureau, a news gathering agency, which last night admitted it was entirely untrue.

In an article published by THE TRIBUNE regarding zoning difficulties which confront Wilmette, it was erroneously stated that the western half of the village was a factory district and the eastern half a residential one. This is not true. There is no factory district in either the west or east part of the village.

Aurel Rasko, a portrait painter of 435 West End avenue, New York City, denies the truth of a story, translated by a Hungarian from the proofs of the Hungarian newspaper, Az Est, which was published in THE TRIBUNE on Oct. 25. In the story, which was sent by George Seides, THE TRIBUNE's Berlin correspondent, Mr. Rasko was said to have quoted President Harding's views on certain European matters. Mr. Rasko says the President made no such statements as were attributed to him, and that the contents of the article were not in accordance with anything that he (Rasko) had ever said.

INSTALLMENT XLVII.

MRS. CROUCH HAS A CALLER.

The little widow's mind turned backward to a brief day when she had enjoyed the association of her husband, who had been a gentleman. Letty was not good enough for Andrew. She hoped he wasn't thinking of marrying her. But of course there are worse things than marriage, and she hoped as fervently that he wasn't up to anything of that sort, either. Instinct told her that Letty might not be unwilling. There are more ways than one of catching a husband.

"Her ladyship!" she repeated, in answer to Letty's flustered whisper. "Whatever for? Wants to see me?"

She threw a distracted glance around her neat kitchen. The table was laid for high tea, and everything looked cozy and cheerful, but this was not the first time Mrs. Crouch and blushed for her lack of proper parlor. A parlor was one of the dreams of her life, and old Pietro Noni had assured her that if she married him and came to live in his castle in Italy she should have not only one parlor but a dozen.

Letty turned back to usher in the visitor. To her annoyance Mrs. Crouch shut the door between the shop and the kitchen immediately Lady Westhaven was inside.

"I'm sure it's kind of your ladyship," said Mrs. Crouch, dimpling and frowning as she dusted a speckless chair with her apron. "I'm sorry to have to ask you to sit in the kitchen. But I'm afraid it's the only place."

"Absolutely charming!" exclaimed Doria, with perfect truth.

Mrs. Crouch's blue china and pewter plates made a distinguished row above the black painted chimney place, and the tallboy in the corner might easily have been ticketed the tallboy in the corner might easily have been ticketed as a museum piece. Little blue and white checked curtains hung at the windows, where flowers bloomed on the sill, with the view of old Rockport harbor in the middle distance.

Doria composed herself in the Windsor chair offered for her consideration. Mrs. Crouch thought how beautiful and how all that money and beautiful West Coast to live in when she got tired of her other houses.

"Not a cuss in the world!" thought Mrs. Crouch, not enviously, however, and mercifully ignorant of the terrible blow she herself was going to aim at all this fancied contentment of Lady Westhaven's.

On her side, Doria was summing up Andrew's mother, while making gay comments about the weather and the approaching end of summer, when Rockport would not be quite so full of trippers from Southbeach.

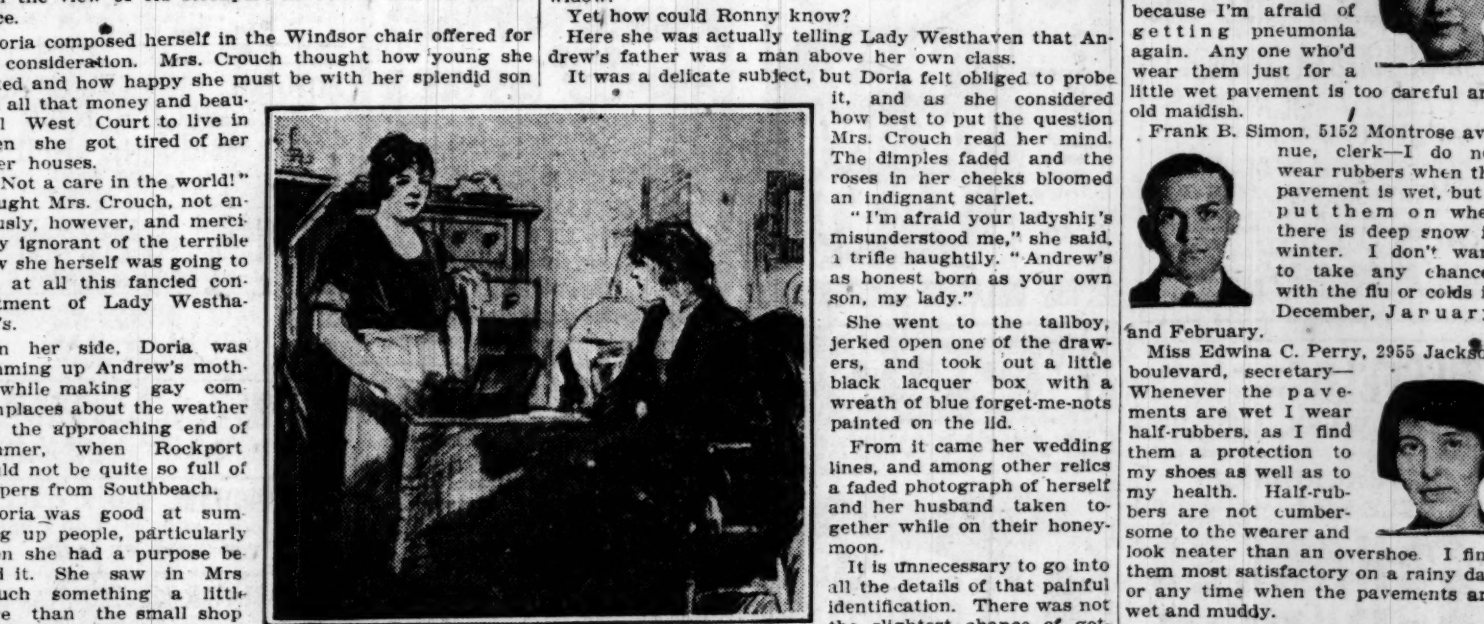

Doria was good at summing up people, particularly when she had a purpose behind it. She saw in Mrs. Crouch something a little more than the small shop-keeper class from which she had evidently sprung.

She saw a woman who had been a great beauty in her youth, and withal a woman of strong character, though soft featured. The sort of woman who would seem to yield, who would bend like a willow wand, but never break. Her dimples were troublesome. They commanded attention from more serious matters. So was the perpetual fading and blooming of the roses in her cheeks. One would think that Mrs. Crouch was a nervous woman, or perhaps had something the matter with her heart. The latter might be true, but as far as nerves went she was entirely self-possessed.

This woman's son was Lord Westhaven. The man whom Doria herself had shot and killed in a lonely mountain cabin in the Sierra Nevada mountains had been the husband of this woman. He, the heir at that time to the Westhaven title and property, had married her under the name of Crouch. Their son, Andrew, was Lord Westhaven, and being legally of age the sole owner and controller of the big shipping business, for the old viscount had entailed his fortune to go with the title.

KERNEL COOTIE--BUT THE EVIDENCE COULDN'T STAND IN COURT

STEWARTHEIRESS ALLOWED BUT $50 FOR "PIN" MONEY

Battle for Millions Hinges on When Girl Is 'of Age.'

Somewhere in Chicago, being shielded from publicity, is Mrs. Robert Honeyman Jr., "poor little rich girl," heiress to $5,000,000, and prior to her marriage allowed only $50 a month for spending money. She is seeking to wrest control of the estate of her father, the late J. K. Stewart, founder of the Stewart-Warner Speedometer company, from Leander H. La Chance, her cousin and guardian, whom she charges with mismanagement.

Legal battles are in progress in the Surrogate court at Riverhead, Long Island. Proceedings have been started in the Probate court here. The story of how "Terence O'Brien," prospector and horse clipper, changed his name to J. K. Stewart, has been denied, and is being kept from the daughter. Charges are flying, but Marion Stewart Honeyman keeps in seclusion.

"Mr. and Mrs. Robert Honeyman checked out yesterday," said a home clerk at the Drake hotel last night.

Attorney Gives Version.

Mr. La Chance maintains silence. His attorney, John D. Black, has little to say about the charges of mismanagement. When asked why Mr. La Chance sought to retain his position as administrator of the estate of Mr. and Mrs. Stewart and become administrator of the estate of Jean Stewart, who died recently, when Mrs. Honeyman, the only heir, objects, Mr. Black replied:

"Mr. La Chance was asked by the parents of Mrs. Honeyman to take care of the estates and be guardian for the girls. Why should he now turn over the estates when he has practically been charged with dishonesty. And then, in law, Mrs. Honeyman is considered an infant in New York, not being of age."

Charge "Dummy" Appeared.

Mrs. Honeyman is now nearly 29 years old. On becoming 18 she was "of age" in Chicago, and so considered by the Probate court and was given control of her inheritance. She was married on April 8, 1921, and the attorneys say that instead of being in court next day she was honeymooning many miles from home.

The result of the "battle over the millions" rests on which law will prevail—that of New York where the age of majority for girls is 21, or that of Illinois, where it is 18. According to New York attorneys Mrs. Honeyman to date has obtained only $180,000 of her inheritance.

Only $50 a Month "Pin Money."

Her actual income, according to court records, was $164,000 annually, from her mother's estate, of which only $13,000 was allowed for her personal expenses. Bills paid by her guardians include $6,000 rent for an Evanston home, $5,000 a year for a corps of servants, $1,500 for a companion, and $50 a month "pin money," which was increased to $100 six months before her marriage.

Charges are to be aired in court that no effort was made by Mr. and Mrs. La Chance to "mother" the orphaned girls, that she was deprived of pleasure, and that she was not properly safeguarded in that she was permitted to make long railroad journeys unaccompanied. In addition, it will be charged she was compelled to "almost beg" for money, although heiress to millions.

Under being married the question arose over continuation of payments under the $13,000 allowance. Robert Honeyman Jr., prominent New York lawyer, is said to have stated:

"Mr. Honeyman Jr. is fully able and intends to support his wife. If he is not able, I can do so without trouble."

In a statement made public yesterday Mr. Honeyman Sr. categorically denied published stories that Mr. Stewart ever gave out the wife of Leander H. La Chance, who as surrogate, admitted Stewart's will to probate, and from Taylor, and La Chance. He threatened court action over the story.

FARM AND GARDEN

GET TURNIPS OUT OF GROUND BEFORE HARD FREEZE.

It is not safe to leave root crops in the ground any longer. Turnips and rutabagas may be left in the ground until after several frosts, but both are injured if left after the first hard freeze.

Hard frosts may be expected most any time. Turnips and rutabagas may be dug and stored without much trouble. Like storing fruit, both of the crops must be handled carefully and there are a few things that should be done at the time of storing which will add much to the keeping quality.

Cutting the tops off close is a common practice that injures the keeping qualities. This is not necessary. Twisting the leaves off just above the crown will leave the turnips and rutabagas in much better condition for storing.

Coolness, moisture, and fresh air are the three principal storage requirements of these vegetables. They soon dry out and wither if kept in a dry place. Where there are only a few to be stored they may be kept in a cool basement or cellar by covering them with a layer of moist soil or sand.

Turnips and rutabagas are most commonly stored in pits, caves, or banks in the garden. This is not only the cheapest but many gardeners consider it the best way to keep them. They must be covered deep enough to keep them from freezing, and the moisture that naturally collects in pit or cave is sufficient to prevent withering.
